Drink to Canada's Golfing Heroes

Calgary Sets 'Em Up!

By JIM TANG
Sports Editor

It'll be understandable if they cancel the bar bills at the Calgary Golf and Country Club.

If it isn't that, then it will be something else. Something, certainly, will be done to celebrate or commemorate the performance of three club members in the Canadian amateur golf championship at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club.

Stories and pictures on Page 12.

Playing in a field termed by Louis Du Plessis, manager of South Africa's Commonwealth team, as "the finest in the history of amateur golf," Keith Alexander, Bob Wylie and Doug Silverberg have managed what well could be an unprecedented accomplishment for members of one club.

CANADA'S HOPE

Not only did the three members of Alberta's Willingdon Cup team all qualify and safely make it through the first round of match play, but when play starts in the quarter-finals this morning, there will be only Alexander and Wylie representing the host nation.

And Silverberg might have made it three Canadians among the eight survivors but for the fact that he was drawn against Wylie in the 166 yesterday afternoon.

Alexander, who eliminated Geoff Clark of New Zealand on Wednesday, ousted two more Commonwealth golfers yesterday.

TWO MORE

He measured another New Zealander, Bruce Stevens, in the morning round by 4 and 3. Then he bested South Africa's David Symons by the same margin in the afternoon.

Today, Alexander meets Ross Murray, the husky New Zealander who defeated him 1 up, in the Commonwealth Match. Wylie, who started off with a 3 up victory over Edmonton's Bob Bradburn on Monday, yesterday took Tom Hunter of Vancouver.

Woman Dies In Accident

NANAIMO — An unidentified Victoria woman was killed when her light truck left the highway eight miles north of Nanaimo late Thursday night.

The lone occupant of the truck narrowly missed a telephone pole and guy wire, driving between them and smashing into an arbutus tree. She was crushed by the wheel.

Help to Negroes Denied by U.S.

OTTAWA (UPI) — A Canadian senator Thursday accused the United States Congress of "virtually halting action on all measures" designed to help the American Negro achieve equality.

Senator Hazen Argue described the U.S. governing body as a combination of right-wing Republicans and Southern Democrats who don't really understand the problem of the Negro and are indifferent to his needs.

'MORE TROUBLE'

Argue, who recently returned from a private fact-finding tour through U.S. racial hot-spots in Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi, said he can see "nothing but more and more trouble ahead" in the United States.

The 46-year-old senator from Kaysville, Sask., said he made the tour as a holiday trip and for a "first-hand look at the conditions of the American Negro."

"I was appalled by what I saw," Argue said.

ROTTING DWELLINGS

He said Negro housing in major cities — Atlanta, Montgomery and Jackson — "is a collection of ancient, rotting dwellings infested with rats and cockroaches."

"Families are jammed into two or three rooms, streets are full of litter and some districts are hangouts for dope addicts, alcoholics and prostitutes," he said.

The Canadian senator said that under present circumstances the prospects "indicate more violence, more riots and more destruction in the days ahead."

He said the Vietnam war "with its big claims on the U.S. budget is devouring monies that could otherwise go for urban redevelopment, for education and job training."

Gun-Toting Barbers Work Under Stars

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Police here are looking for two amateur barbers.

Royden Chrysler, 18, of Moose Jaw, said he was walking near a city park shortly after midnight Thursday when a white convertible stopped beside him and two men jumped out.

One held a gun, the other a pair of scissors.

They ordered him to stand still while they cut off his long, flowing hair.

The shorn youth said he had never seen his assailants before.

Colleague Attacks De Gaulle Stand

PARIS (Reuters) — The leader of the right wing among President de Gaulle's supporters in Parliament attacked de Gaulle Thursday for his controversial support for French-speaking Canadians.

Valery Giscard d'Estaing, whose Independent Republican party provides 44 seats toward the Gaullists' thin majority in the National Assembly, also issued a strongly worded appeal to de Gaulle to reform his methods of government.

CONTRARY ACT

He said in a statement that de Gaulle's support in Quebec for the French-speaking Canadians was "contrary to one of the principles on which Gen. de Gaulle founded the recovery of France's prestige and influence."

A refusal to interfere in the internal affairs of states."

He said this president would have done better by accepting the Canadian federal government's invitation to Ottawa, and then, on his return to France, expressing to French-speaking Canadians "the contribution which France can bring to the affirmation of their personality."

CUT SHORT

De Gaulle cut short his Canadian visit last month after making his now-famous "free Quebec" remarks in Montreal and having the federal government declare them unacceptable.

Giscard d'Estaing also urged de Gaulle to base his decisions on effective deliberation both inside the government and in Parliament.

He said there were not "two categories of Frenchmen—the good ones and the bad ones," and there should be democratic debate both in the Gaullist ranks and the Opposition.

Island's East Coast Woods Closed

'Scared We Might Lose Park'

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Tinder-dry forests on Vancouver Island have forced a general woods closure on the east coast with the almost unprecedented added precaution of a ban on all campfires in provincial parks.

A spokesman for the provincial parks branch said Thursday: "We are just scared to death that we might lose a park."

Officials said all-night patrols have been on duty in parks for several days watching for campfires which might cause a larger conflagration.

The campfire ban has been in effect outside of parks and other approved camp and picnic spots for some time, but the increasing hazard coupled with the fact that "99.9 per cent" of campers use gasoline stoves for cooking prompted the additional precaution, the spokesman said.

Parks branch officials said on only one other occasion

Giant Island Fire Rages On

Work Together! Agencies Told

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

A B.C. Hydro official has blamed the Forest Service and the Highways Department for the start of a giant forest fire between Alberni and Tofino.

"Why did the Forest Service allow the Highways Department to undertake blasting on that road, when the forests were so dry?" asked A. D. McGillivray, regional manager of Hydro.

"They wouldn't let our crews in because it was too dry, but they let them blast on the road. It just doesn't make sense!"

The fire now covers 10 square miles, and is being fought by 500 men, including loggers and residents.

The fire was started when a way brought down a power line at Sander's camp, igniting the forest.

In late developments:

● The bridge burned out at Taylor River was not replaced Thursday, and an emergency bridge will be put in today. But it cannot be used by travellers, only by firefighters.

● Three truckloads of fish are rotting on the dock at Tofino, because a power outage killed the ice supply.

● Mechanical failures kept a Canso and a Martin Mars

Striking Seamen, Shipping Firms Break Off Talks

MONTREAL (CP)—Bargainers for Canada's inland sailors and 32 shipping companies broke off talks late Thursday after trying vainly to bring a quick end to a strike that started at noon.

Leonard McLaughlin, president of 5,400-member Seafarers' International Union, described the walkout as "a situation on fire" and said the union is determined to satisfy four basic demands—the main one being a 40-hour work week. (See Page 5)

Shipping along the Great Lakes and down the St. Lawrence River ground to a halt gradually as the hard-pressed negotiating teams began working on package offers they hoped might end the strike that could eventually stall 181 ships.

The post-strike discussions were ended about 8 p.m. when the two sides left a sweaty downtown office and declared they had reached a stalemate.

No time or date was set for a resumption of talks.

The companies operating the vessels handle about 83 per cent of Canada's inland cargo transportation.

By 5 p.m. at least 35 of the 181 ships involved had been tied up in the ports from the Lakehead to Quebec, as their crews walked off the vessels.

Shortly after the strike deadline passed complaints poured into union headquarters here from shipping operators that some ships were abandoned and some cargoes left unloaded.

"It's all malarkey," said John Royce, strike director for the seafarers, when asked about company charges.

'All Safely Berthed'

"We have been assured by our port agents that our men have not left any ships until they are safely berthed at the docks."

However, longshoremen in most ports were refusing to unload struck ships and the SIU had had several requests from shipowners to extend the strike deadline while unloading proceeded.

One such request—from the Canadian government — was complied with and SIU members were ordered to sail the tankers Edward Simard and Joseph Simard from northern ports carrying vital supplies for department of national defence bases.

Maritime trustees Judge Rene Lippe and Jean-Pierre Despres, assistant deputy minister of labor, spent much of Thursday morning clarifying issues with the negotiating teams.

"This is the first really serious bargaining session these people have had," Judge Lippe said during the lunch break.

But soft-spoken Ben Trux, chief negotiator for the shipping companies, said the two sides were still far apart.

Mr. McLaughlin said that neither side had budged on "the four basic demands we are determined to satisfy."

Storks Vs. Eagles

Sky Dark with Fighting Birds

By NUYAN YIGIT

ISTANBUL, Turkey (Reuters) — Eyewitnesses Thursday confirmed accounts of deadly battles between storks and eagles.

A Reuters report of a two-day fight near Tarsus this month, which left 50 dead birds on the ground aroused controversy among British ornithologists.

But two Turkish zoology professors and Istanbul's Hunters' Club confirm that the air war is very real.

Husein Karagol, 62-year-old physics teacher of Erzurum, Eastern Turkey, described how the birds fight in battle formation.

"The eagles and storks fight in thousands," he said.

"I was in a valley of the Shakhak Mountains near Erzurum in 1921 when I saw such a battle."

"The storks' tactic was to gain altitude—not vertically but gradually winging higher. The eagles flying in a horizontal line attacked them as they rose. But those which were not wounded or killed flew above the eagles and selected their individual enemy targets.

"Extending their beaks, drawing back their feet and folding their wings, they dived exactly like an arrow. When a stork's beak strikes the head of an eagle, there is not the slightest chance of the eagle's surviving."

pull its beak out again and both fall and die together."

"During the battle the sky is dark with fighting birds. Blood covers the ground and the air rings with the cries of eagles and the blows of the storks' beaks."

Professors Saadet Bayramoglu and Atif Sengun of Istanbul University confirmed the battles of the birds which usually takes place when the storks are migrating for the winter.

Deadly Divebombers

They were a request for the 40-hour week, paid holidays, a new manning scale and changes in a work-spread system that keeps sailors on call over 24-hour periods.

The red-haired union leader said the 96 per cent pro-strike vote registered by his members earlier this week made it clear the men would not return to work without winning these demands.

"It's a situation on fire," he said. "We can't settle without winning these four points. What good would it do if the men wouldn't go back to work?"

William Dunkerley, labor relations manager for Canada Steamship Lines Ltd. and a member of the Canadian Lake Carriers Association's negotia-

ing committee, told a press conference that, despite the SIU's assurance that all ships would be brought to safe ports, ships were being "left in distress."

Asked to clarify what he meant by distress, Mr. Dunkerley said in one case a ship had been abandoned in a tidal basin at Quebec City. It should have gone in, unloaded and come out on the tide.

"But its crew has abandoned it and when the tide goes out she'll be lying on the bottom. Wouldn't you call that distress?"

Association President J. W. McGiffin issued a statement at the press conference in which he claimed that the strike could from pouring water on the fire, and third plane, a Mars at Sprout Lake, could not take off because of the smoke.

Emergency committees of residents went from house to house throughout Tofino and Ucluelet, urging residents to turn off all lights so the small standby power plant could be used.

MIA Dr. Howard McDiarmid of Tofino blamed the problem of blasting power lines on failure of B.C. Hydro and the Highways Department to get together.

Officials said the fire is not under control, but could be contained as long as there is no wind. Late Thursday night, a breeze was coming up.

Many stores on the north end of the fire had run out of some essentials which were needed to feed the forestry crews.

Ocean Air made 16 round trips from Port Alberni to Tofino-Ucluelet, carrying officials to the north end of the fire. Three pilots kept in the air for a mammoth shift of emergency flying.

Dense smoke 40,000 feet prevented MacMillan Bloedel inspectors from sizing up the extent of the loss, but it will be in the millions of dollars.

As hot as the fire was, the dispute over who was responsible was even hotter.

A spokesman for B.C. Hydro said for two summers the Highways Department or its contractors have frequently cut power lines with road blasting.

The spokesman asked: "Isn't blasting today supposed to be a precise operation? They keep knocking out our lines. They aren't too careful!"

Dr. McDiarmid, a Social Credit M.P.A., said he would demand the two government agencies work together.

He suggested B.C. Hydro should make arrangements to move its lines when blasting is taking place.

"Is he serious?" Asked a Hydro spokesman. "That's a bit much!"

Mr. McGillivray added: "Have you seen that country? It's a narrow road, there is just nowhere to move the lines to."

He charged the Highways Department has consistently failed to notify the Hydro crews of blasting sites and times.

"I made representations to the Highway Department when the Tofino Chamber of Commerce was pushing for action," he said.

Asked if the blasting had been careless or precise, Mr. McGillivray said with a rueful laugh: "Well it wasn't too precise this time, was it?"

While he was not positive the latest blast had been done without knowledge of the Hydro crews, he said: "I don't think we were told."

"If we had been told, our crews from Port Alberni could have been standing by at the scene."

Another problem with getting Hydro crews stationed at blasting sites was the ban on such travel by the Forest Service.

"Then they go and allow this blasting!" said Mr. McGillivray. Commenting on the anger of Tofino residents over many power outages, the official said: "Tofino can't have its cake and eat it too. They want a fine highway, they will have to put up with blasting."

More than 2,500 acres of valuable standing timber worth several million dollars has been destroyed.

Woods Closed

"several years ago" were campfires in provincial parks banned during a general forest closure.

The general closure—banning all industrial operations within half a mile of any forested area—was ordered for mid-night Thursday on the east coast of the Island south of Port McNeill. It also extends to the Lower Mainland south of Bute Inlet and east along the Fraser River and as far north as Boston Bar.

No one may enter the woods for travel, picnicking, berry-picking, camping or any other recreational activity. The ban on camping and picnicking does not extend to provincial parks.

A restricted industrial closure, halting all industrial operations in or near the woods between the hours of 1 p.m. and midnight, went into effect at the same time in the remainder of Vancouver forest district, including the west coast of the Island.

A spokesman said: "By restricting operations during the hot, critical part of the day, the chances of an accidental fire getting out of control will be lessened."

The ban on all campfires in provincial parks is general in Vancouver forest district, extending to the Lower Mainland.

The B.C. Forest Service issued a reminder that all campfire permits have been suspended in the Kamloops and Nelson forest districts as well.

Your Good Health

Furnace May Influence Asthmatic Trend

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has had asthma since he was 25. He is now 55. We have always lived in a house with oil heat, but now intend to move to a smaller one which has hot water heat. We were told that hot water heat is bad for anyone with asthma, but that oil steam is moist so my husband can breathe better. We are not taking the house unless we hear from you first. — MRS. F.M.S.

I'm afraid there's a good deal of misunderstanding about which kinds of heat are "dry" and which are "moist." The kind of fuel makes no difference. The type of furnace MAY make a difference. Any kind of heating system is bound to cause some evaporation. The warmer you keep the house, the dryer it is bound to become.

With a hot air heating system, a water tank in the furnace and, if you keep it filled, the warm air rising from the furnace will carry some moisture with it.

Keeping some moisture in the air is more comfortable for everyone, but it can, indeed, make an even greater difference to a patient with asthma or some other respiratory problems such as emphysema.

Whether hot water or steam heating depends on precisely what kind of piping is in use. If it is a "closed" system, with the hot water (or steam) being piped to the radiators and then flowing back to the furnace with most of the water evaporated, either type of fuel will provide equally dry heat.

If the steam system is one with escape valves on the radiators, enough moisture may be pushed into the air to make a difference in the humidity.

However, my suggestion would be not to worry too much about the type of heating system. If the house is too dry, then you can get humidifiers. These are trays which can be fitted on top of radiators and kept filled with water. The evaporation keeps the air moist.

Some people use other kinds of containers around the house for the same purpose—decorative crocks, pitchers, large vases. But remember that the surface area of water, not the depth, is what governs the amount of evaporation. Thus flat trays are best. Plants (which have to be kept moist) also help. And the tightness of the house itself makes a difference. A tightly sealed house gradually dries out and little moisture can get in from outdoors.

Even running an inch of water in the bathtub will add a great deal of moisture to a dry house. Electrically operated humidifiers are available.

be settled "if agreement can be reached on the question of hours of work."

He claimed that the 40-hour week, "as the industry generally understands the term," has been in effect for Canadian inland sailors since 1952. Over-time rates are paid for hours worked in excess of 40 hours.

The shipping companies, he added, had submitted a proposal to Labor Minister Nicholson providing implementation on a phased basis of a plan to give seamen one hour's leave for each hour worked over 48 a week. It could go into effect by the beginning of 1969.

Final count of the ballots at the Montreal headquarters of the SIU Wednesday revealed that 97.8 per cent of the voting seamen were in favor of striking and that 98 per cent of the Great Lakes membership had actually marked ballots.

Demands for a 40-hour week and changes in the work-spread system that keeps seamen on call for 24 hours were the main outstanding issues in talks aimed at reaching a settlement, spokesmen for both union and management said during negotiations.

At Hooper, business agent for International Hydrodynamics Co. Ltd., owners of the submarine, said Thursday the vessel was leased for the exploration work. The submarine carries special equipment to pick up underwater objects.

He said the submarine, leased for about $2,500 a day, has been working at a depth of about 1,300 feet.

4 and 3, before his 2 and 1 decision over clubmate Silverberg.

Silverberg, winner over Charlie Bruce of Halifax Wednesday, took out Victoria's Rick Kent, 1 up, before losing to Wylie.

Three more reigning national champions fell yesterday as a South African, two New Zealanders and three United States golfers joined Alexander and Wylie in the round of eight.

CHAMP'S FALL
Beaten yesterday were Australian champion and medalist Bill Britten, English champion Mike Barnack and Connie De Toit, the former South African champion who is the current Brazilian champion.

After Alexander and Murray start things off this morning at 9, Hugh Balcoch, the 21-year-old (yesterday) South African who eliminated Du Toit, takes on Dick Runkle, the surprising Californian who was four under par yesterday when he closed out his match in the 18s.

Then it's Wylie against John Sale, the 20-year-old member of the New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island Willingdon Cup team who turned out to be a New Englander attending University of Florida, and Jones against Lane Bennett, 29-year-old collegian from the Monterey Peninsula Club in California.

The 18-hole semi-finals will be at 2:00 and 2:15 this afternoon.

But the companies claim that in private the SIU is really insisting on 55 per cent.

The union blames the conciliation board for not recommending elimination of the work-spread by which sailors may be called to work any eight hours, consecutively or separately, over a 24-hour period.

TWO ON DECK
The union also wants two men on deck and two men in the engine room at all times. They say the number of men required to man new vessels should be subject to arbitration.

The companies say that determining the number of men is management's prerogative and not subject to bargaining.

In Ottawa, Labor Minister Nicholson said he did not think the circumstances "warranted direct government intervention at this time."

Mr. Nicholson said in an interview he was "very disappointed."

A work stoppage of any kind is very serious, especially a work stoppage which involves the shipment of wheat and other commodities under international agreement.

Mr. Nicholson said Canada's statutes provide for collective bargaining "and I don't feel the government should intervene" at this time. He said he was watching the situation closely and his department's officials "are still available."

In Calgary, Donald Fleming, Conservative leadership candidate, said the federal government shouldn't wait too long before intervening in the strike.

The former finance minister told a press conference that if shipping companies and the SIU are unable to reach agreement within two weeks parliament should be summoned to pass strike-ending legislation.

He expressed concern about the effect the strike could have on shipments of Prairie grain to the East.

Desertion Report 'Nonsense'

WASHINGTON (CP)—Reports from Europe that many U.S. soldiers are deserting to avoid service in Vietnam were labelled "sheer nonsense" Thursday by Defence Secretary Robert McNamara.

A London Times report Thursday said deserting soldiers are being aided by an underground network of European pacifists and the desertion rate among soldiers in Germany is about 1,000 a year.

U.S. Claims Air, Land Successes

SAIGON — U.S. Air Force's B-52 bombers saturated North Vietnamese territory near the demilitarized zone with bombs today. At the same time, U.S. Marines and army paratroopers reported significant victories in South Vietnam.

The B-52 raids in this area were the first such attacks since July. All of the B-52s returned safely.

LAND ACTION

In land action, U.S. Marines stormed and captured a heavily-fortified Communist hilltop command post. A short distance away, paratroopers blocked off escape routes and hammered a trapped North Vietnamese regiment with artillery and massive air strikes.

FURTHER NORTH

Further north along the demilitarized zone, Marine helicopters dumped thousands of gallons of tear-gas gas on a suspected North Vietnamese stronghold in an attempt to drive the Communists out into warring leathern guns.

The gas attack was the first in months such a tactic has been used on such a large scale. Gas has been used numerous times against Viet Cong concealed in underground tunnels.

A spokesman for U.S. Army headquarters at Frankfurt, West Germany, called the report "grossly exaggerated." He said the army's current list of long-term absentees totals 338 men, including some who have been gone several years.

MANY VOLUNTEERS

To counter the reports, which included a statement by one former soldier in England that many deserters are finding refuge in Britain, U.S. Army officials said that so far this year 10,500 servicemen in Europe have volunteered for duty in Vietnam.

If this rate continues, the total for 1967 will be substantially higher than the 14,300 who volunteered in 1966.

EUROPEAN PROBE

The Times says its figures are based on an investigation in Europe, which began with leaflets encouraging desertion printed in London and circulated on the continent.

It chronicles the case of one deserter who was identified by The Times as Pte. Roy R. Jones III, 20, a Detroit Negro assigned to the 2nd Armored Cavalry Regiment in Germany.

The newspaper says Jones now is living in Sweden, receiving money from the underground network, and studying to become a playwright and teacher.

ARMY AWARE

The defense department said army officials in Europe have been aware for some time of stories about an anti-Vietnam group aiding deserters but these stories were greatly exaggerated.

FRENCH CENTRE

In London, disguised U.S. soldiers said on television Thursday night they are helped by anti-Vietnam groups in Europe to desert from the U.S. Army.

They said how the groups encouraged them to desert from their European bases, then helped them to find jobs in various European countries.

A man who called himself Mr. Cook said he is the head of the French movement, which he said was the headquarters of all European activities.

Arms Arrive to Fan War

LAGOS, Nigeria (Reuters)—Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, leader of secessionist Biafra, Thursday named his own administrator for Nigeria's Midwestern Region.

The state's local radio later confirmed the announcement.

Col. Ojukwu, in a broadcast from Radio Biafra, appointed 31-year-old Maj. George Okonkwo as temporary administrator and said Biafran troops are in the Midwest "not as enemies but as friends."

He made no mention of Brig. Victor Banjo, who on Monday announced himself head of a new Midwestern region, independent of both Biafra and the federal capital of Lagos. He had led Biafran troops into the Midwest to join mutinous federal troops in the earlier stages of Nigeria's civil war.

ARMY HEAD

Radio Midwest, broadcasting from the state capital of Benin, announced Maj. Okonkwo's appointment and described Brig. Banjo as "commander of the Liberation Army in the Midwest."

Brig. Banjo's present whereabouts were not known but he announced Monday he intended to return to the battlefield to "liberate" Nigeria from alleged Northern domination.

Meanwhile, important shipments of aircraft, arms and ammunition have arrived here to help the federal government—and more were reported on the way.

The 3,048-ton Polish freighter Cracow sailed from here after unloading a cargo reliably reported to be of East European military supplies. Czechoslovak ammunition was among the cargo discharged.

An aircraft loaded with enough Belgian rifles to equip a federal battalion and another with a cargo of heavy ammunition for French-built Puma and Panther armored cars, arrived at Kano Airport in northern Nigeria, informed sources said.

Two Czechoslovak twin-engine L-29 advanced trainers, which can be fitted with rockets, arrived here last week and unconfirmed reports said four more were expected.

BRITISH-BUILT

Two British-built twin-jet Provost aircraft, bought from the Sudan, were on their way, reliable sources said.

The Nigerian Air Force is mainly equipped with about 30 single-engine German-built Dornier and Italian Piaggio trainers.

MANILA (UPD)

The killer Taal volcano rumbled and shot up fireballs every five seconds Thursday and Philippine geologists feared a new cone inside the crater was ready to erupt.

Police evacuated families from around the 284-foot volcano, hoping to avoid a repetition of the Sept. 28, 1965 catastrophe that killed 190 persons in a fiery sea of lava.

Observers for the volcanology commission said a new cone building up within the old crater has been spitting up "balls of fire every five seconds."

Manx May Secede Over Radio Battle

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (UPI)

The Isle of Man, angered by Britain's attitude in a squabble over the last of the nation's pop "pirate" radio stations, may break away from Britain and seek associate status within the British Commonwealth, the speaker of the lower house of the Manx Parliament said Thursday.

Speaker Charles Kerruish told newsmen on his arrival from London relations between the tiny Irish Sea island and the British government "are at their lowest ebb ever."

'IN 100 YEARS'

"They are certainly worse than they have ever been in the last 100 years," he added.

Kerruish headed a Manx delegation which flew to London Thursday to protest the government's decision to extend its ban on pirate radio stations to Radio Caroline North, which broadcasts from five miles off the Manx coast.

MINISTER SEEN

Shortly after the delegation saw Miss Alice Bacon, minister of state at the home office, an official statement confirmed the British government would push ahead with its plans to put Radio Caroline North off the air by Sept. 1.

Traditionally, Britain administers the island's external affairs. But the Isle of Man has governed itself internally with its own parliament since ancient times.

FIRST STEPS

"The fact we are a small community does not worry us," Kerruish said. "We have a unique Commonwealth background."

"First steps toward attaining associated status" will be taken when Miss Bacon visits the island next month, he said.

IN EFFECT

Kerruish said that as far as he was concerned there was "no question" of Radio Caroline's being taken off the air Sept. 1. He said earlier statements to the contrary attributed to him were "a misunderstanding."

The nationwide government ban on the pirate radio stations went into effect in Britain Tuesday.

Manx contentions that it did not include Radio Caroline North were based on the island's conviction that what goes on about its waters constitutes an internal affair.

"Relations are no longer harmonious," Kerruish said.

Another Dragon Lady Weaves Deadly Web

SAIGON (AP) — A second Dragon Lady terrorist is reported gunning for Americans in Saigon, seeking to add personally to a toll of more than 35,000 U.S. servicemen dead from all causes in the Vietnam war.

Officials noted Thursday a growing Communist emphasis on harassing incidents aimed at the forthcoming presidential and Senate elections even as the ground war lagged.

THE WEEKLY CASUALTY REPORT

At least 52 Americans were killed in action Aug. 5-12 — the highest figure in seven months. The day's accounts of field operations listed no significant contacts, although the air campaign continued unabated. The U.S. command, however, cited several terrorist incidents and emphasized the appearance in Saigon of the rifle-wielding woman agent evidently assigned to kill American soldiers.

A spokesman said more such activity is expected as the Sept. 3 presidential election date nears. He said information has been received that more women have been recruited by the Viet Cong for terrorist and assassination assignments in the capital.

THE LATEST APPEARANCE

The latest appearance of a woman terrorist followed five attacks last month by a girl who fired a .45-calibre pistol from the motor scooter on which she rode behind a male accomplice.

That girl killed two Vietnamese policemen, a Chinese businessman and a U.S. captain and wounded an American sergeant. She was described as young and pretty and naturally acquired the nickname Dragon Lady.

THE SECOND WOMAN AGENT

The second woman agent has made to abortive appearances. Described as about 40, she sometimes rides on the back of a Grey French sedan and carries what appears to be a carbine or an M-16 rifle.

Hussein Royally Greeted

CAIRO — Jordan's King Hussein received a tumultuous welcome Thursday night when he flew into Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, on his tour of Mideast capitals for pre-summit talks. King Faisal personally greeted the Jordanian monarch.

In other Mideast developments:

• Cairo newspaper El Ahram today reported new evidence of Arab disunity. It said the atmosphere was "poisonous" at a recent meeting of Arab foreign ministers in Khartoum, Sudan.

• Yugoslav President Tito left Cairo for home Thursday, optimistic about the talks with Arab leaders on the Mideast crisis. Tito and Egypt's President Nasser said in a joint statement the UN should handle the problem.

• Cairo reports said soldiers of neighboring Libya's aging ruler King Idris El Senussi were defecting "in a daily flow" to join President Nasser's forces.

Ticklish Subject

IN WAKE OF THE Sargent commission report Premier Bennett indicates that legislation will probably be introduced in connection with "bugging," and also that registration of all firearms will be considered.

In the latter instance it is an anomaly that hand guns should be registered and not rifles and shotguns, obviously they should be brought into line.

With respect to electronic eavesdropping, tending to become distastefully prevalent in some circles, this is a more delicate proposition. It would have to be handled with extreme care.

Snooping of this modern kind is abhorrent in principle, and creates mechanical Peeping Toms to an extent that could be dangerous. As well it strikes at the root of individual freedoms, which although gradually being whittled away still remain as vitally important to people.

There are exceptional circumstances which Mr. Justice Sargent has commented on, primarily those in relation to public safety against criminal activity. His views can be appreciated, and there is no doubt police work would be a great deal easier, and enabled to be more effective, could it "bug" places under suspicion.

The commissioner recommends the use of such detection devices for requisite authorities, although the "untrammeled right" he advocates is open to question. Untrammelled means without restriction, and would be an invasion of human privacy beyond equitable right.

Mr. Sargent would put the onus on the courts to grant bugging permission, but even the courts could be misled by some applications and the safeguards necessary to protect the civil liberties of individuals, and of the public good, would have to be meticulously drafted.

The use of electronics to combat crime—and police work is also for the safety of the public in general—may well be as useful in this modern age as electronics are in other fields, but it presents a ticklish problem nevertheless.

The government is wisely not jumping to endorse the Sargent report, however, and its main concern at the moment is to study the report carefully and take into account all the ramifications involved therein. One doesn't expect it to be too rash with a subject that touches personal feelings such as does eavesdropping whether official or not.

Seed of Suspicion

SOME OF THE ARAB states, at least, are reluctant to heed the advice of the Russians that they "punish" the United States and other Western nations for their friendliness to the Israelis by applying "powerful economic controls."

The suggestion obviously means that the westward flow of oil should stop. But for how long? And to what purpose?

Oil is the very foundation of the economy in much of the Arab territory, and practical men must ask themselves if such "punishment" as they inflict on the customer nations will not be even more painful for those who wield the stick.

Russia is unlikely to support the Arabs to the extent of buying vast quantities of oil she does not need.

Besides, the Arab leaders are astute enough to realize that what Russia is proposing, in effect, is that they align themselves with the Communists. Such an invitation they are not anxious to accept.

Moreover, there is no certainty that a continuing oil embargo against the West would have the desired effect. It might be embarrassing, but it certainly would not induce the friends of Israel to abandon her to ultimate destruction at the hands of her neighbors.

It seems more likely that the embargo will be relaxed rather than extended for the reason that the Arab states cannot afford the loss of revenue, any more than Egypt can afford to keep the Suez Canal closed to traffic indefinitely.

It is entirely possible Moscow's high pressure methods in this instance may react against that government. The advice they are offering is likely to create suspicion of the Kremlin's true aims and turn the Arabs towards a more profitable road.

To the Barricades!

BRIG-GEN. ROBERT SCOTT, a retired United States air force officer, used an explosive turn of phrase when he spoke of the possibility of a military takeover in view of the tendency to riot, burn, pillage and slay in the big city ghettos.

Speaking at an American Legion meeting in Santa Anita he called for the revitalization of its membership as a "powerful and militant political force dedicated to returning to private life those politicians who prove unwilling to listen to the voice of 100-per-cent red-blooded Americans."

It sounds very much as though he were advocating on the part of one particular group what he condemns in another.

And referring to Negro trouble-makers, he said if there is no law to prevent them burning the country "what is wrong with us saying, 'We will build it up again but we will bury you first!'"

This is the sort of inflammatory demagoguery which will be more likely to add to the woes of this country than remove them.

When the general wrote God Is My Co-Pilot he was in his element. It might have been better had he stayed there.

A Mild Hurrah

PRIME MINISTER PEARSON'S announcement that his government will cut down on its wild spending spree will undoubtedly cause general pleasure throughout Canada. Such a move on Ottawa's part is long overdue.

However, before taxpayers give carte blanche approbation to the government's belated and reluctant decision they should first ascertain just where and how the forecast economies are to be applied.

Balanced judgment on fiscal matters and budgetary planning have never been particularly strong points of the present Liberal administration, whose income and expenditure policies seem always to be more closely related to partisan interests than to national needs.

So although it is obvious that Mr. Pearson's philosophy of achieving strength through spending has proved unsound, it is perhaps still too early for the public to do more than to give a mild hurrah.

Israeli-Occupied Jordan

Hostility, Bitterness Slowly Ebb

By DON COOK from Jerusalem

IT would be as wrong to picture Arab Jerusalem and Israeli-occupied Jordan today as seething with suppressed unrest and violence as it would be to describe this as some Garden of Eden with lions and lambs lying down together.

Naturally, the truth lies somewhere in between. Moreover, in the Middle East every situation is always mercurial and anything can change from day to day. That is the nature of the people, the politicians and the governments.

But at this point, two months after the six-day war, it is the impression of this correspondent, living and spending a great deal more time on the Arab side of Jerusalem than on the Jewish side, that the atmosphere is improving and even normalizing rather than deteriorating. While things are uneasy and nobody in Jordanian territory likes the occupation or what has happened, nevertheless the hostility, the bitterness and the animosity seems to be slowly going out of the atmosphere.

Paradoxically, this may in part be the result of the general strike in Old Jerusalem which gave the Arabs the satisfaction of proving that they could close down the whole town for a day, but thanks to restrained reaction by the Israeli authorities also proved that the action did not really make the slightest difference to anybody but the Arabs themselves.

During the strike itself, the Israelis did nothing except patrol the streets, and there was not even any attempt at any mass rally or demonstration. After it was over, the Israelis then avoided any mass retaliation which almost certainly would have backfired and made the atmosphere worse.

Thus, the Arabs had the satisfaction of demonstrating to Amman and the outside Arab world that they are not taking the occupation lying down, while the Israelis demonstrated that they do not need to crack heads and mount mass arrests to maintain complete control here.

Three fairly distinct categories of trouble have become noticeable in these last weeks. First, there is personal friction, bad manners and a front to customs and sensibilities, and it is in this category that most of the difficulties arise. After that there is the non-co-operation type of resistance. And finally, but rarest of all, there are the actual security difficulties or threats to security of which there have been remarkably few.

In the first category, many shocking and inexcusable incidents have occurred. Israelis, with their inborn drive and dynamism, are not notable for tact or politeness or sense of human relations among themselves. As conquerors looted on the sabbath, unhurried, polite, somewhat sanctuaries atmosphere of Old Jerusalem they have been in many many instances positively insufferable. Much of it, undoubtedly, has been just plain unthinking, but there is no excuse and the intellectual and political leaders of Israel are as exasperated and irritated by the behavior of some of their countrymen as an Arab or Christian.

Girls in mini-skirts or shorts, bare-legged in sandals, heads uncovered, boys in uniform toting Tommy-guns, slouching around the Church of the Holy Sepulchre smoking cigarettes and giggling and cuddling are not a very edifying picture. This sort of thing has now largely been checked by the posting of notices to dress and decorum with guards to enforce it—and the added warning in recent days of legal prosecution if they are not observed.

Mini-skirts or tight mini-skirts are perfectly normal on the streets of Tel Aviv but they are a greater incitement to violence than hidden weapons in the Arab territories which Israel occupies. In fact they have been banned altogether by the military governor of the Gaza Strip. But in the town of Nabulus the other day, I followed two young long-legged Israeli girls with their boy-friends through the Arab market and would not have been surprised at any moment to see either an Israeli let fly at an Arab or an Arab let go with an insult at one of the girls.

Nothing happened, but in another west bank town in recent days there was a wild scuffle involving about 50 young Arabs and Jews in exactly this same circumstance.

You can perhaps do something about mini-skirts, but what can you do about the Jewish lady who walked into the hotel where I am staying in the old city on a Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath, to take part in a bridge contest organized by an Israeli club, and asked the Arab hotel manager: "Is your kitchen kosher?"

Such incidents will go on and on, but mercifully the worse seems to be past—partly with the settling of deontum at the holy places and partly because the first rush of ebullient and unthinking Israeli visitors is over.

As for the non-co-operation type of resistance, one simple story indicates what is happening on both sides. During the period immediately after the end of hostilities, a high official of the Jerusalem office of the Jordanian ministry of tourism was co-operating fully and sincerely with the Israelis. He was intelligent and highly competent and of great practical assistance.

Sentences for illegal possession of weapons, imposed under the old 1947 British emergency regulations which the Israelis use in occupied territory, are stiff—seven years for an Arab in Hebron in possession of a machine gun; four other cases in Gaza with sentences ranging up to six years.

"We can afford to take things easy because we know we are strong," a well-informed Israeli official said. "We know that this has probably been regarded by the Arabs as a sign of weakness, and that to an extent this may encourage them to think they can get away with trouble. But we are able to single out trouble-makers very rapidly and deal with them, and otherwise we do not intend to be involved into over-reacting and we intend to keep the atmosphere as normal and easy as possible."

Or, as Defence Minister Moshe Dayan put it:

"If they do not wish to co-operate we will manage by ourselves. We are not colonialists and this is not Aden. We have our own bus drivers, our own shopkeepers, and our own inhabitants to run things. They should know that their opposition will decide nothing. If they want to co-operate, well and good, but if they do not we will manage without them."

The Israelis assured him of their desire to have him continue in his job, but simply said if he did not want the job then they would have to give it to somebody else. The man is now at home undisturbed but out of work.

In the area of violence or threats to security, remarkably little has happened, for one simple reason. Israeli security, police work and intelligence has been almost totally effective and the possibility of organized violence appears to have been wiped out before it could get started.

Sentences for illegal possession of weapons, imposed under the old 1947 British emergency regulations which the Israelis use in occupied territory, are stiff—seven years for an Arab in Hebron in possession of a machine gun; four other cases in Gaza with sentences ranging up to six years.

"We can afford to take things easy because we know we are strong," a well-informed Israeli official said. "We know that this potential of this priceless landmark.

The Castle Society this year has spent $2,500 increasing the exterior lighting on the Castle. This means the society is getting down to rock bottom, with but $300 in the bank at present, and light bills for the rest of the year yet to be paid. The society feels it is doing a worthwhile Greater Victoria community undertaking, and does not wish to ask the city or the government for funds.

If it had not been for $250 gifts each from Hon. Frank MacKenzie Ross and Mr. H. R. MacMillan, both of Vancouver, the society would not have been able to accomplish this year's work.

The society has 29 sustaining members at $25 a year each, and 13 club members at $3 a year each, and about 100 members at $2 a year each. The sustaining and club members are the very backbone of this organization.

Of the 29 sustaining members only 10 benefit directly from the tourist business, which is strange, since the Castle is such a tourist attraction, and helps considerably to give Victoria its personality. Only one club member benefits directly from the tourist business.

When the society started in 1959 it was felt those catering to tourists would be overwhelming in support of the Castle, but this has not proved to be the case, to any great extent. There seems to be a tendency on the part of many to say: "Let Jack do it."

The society feels there should be more public support for Craigdarroch Castle. Lack of support causes worry for the future.

JAMES K. NESBITT,
President,
The Castle Society.

On July 10 this year, a visitors' book was placed inside the main entrance to Craigdarroch Castle by The Castle Society.

To the surprise of all, more than 1,000 persons signed the book in the first month. They came from many countries, chiefly the United States and Canada. It is estimated that about 25 per cent of visitors do not sign, and that 50 per cent of people driving around the Castle do not enter. The figures are all the more surprising, considering the Castle is closed Saturdays, Sundays and evenings.

genuinely expect to get away with it.

I am convinced that if the police would strictly obey the laws which govern their practices and procedures, and quit sneering at people every time they stand up for their rights, and stop treating everyone they talk to, even when giving them a traffic ticket as if they are traitors to their country or worse, I am sure that the police would find a different attitude towards them, and very quickly too. I suggest they try it first, before crying about lack of respect, and support and aid.

I am convinced that if they do try it, they will find the public response beyond all their wildest dreams.

Cultural Revolution

China Tries Patching

By GUY SEARLS from Hong Kong

CHINA'S Cultural Revolution, like Humpty Dumpty, has had a great fall and seems at present to be scattered in many pieces. Unlike the King's horses and the King's men who couldn't put Humpty together again, however, Peking feels that it can patch up its Cultural Revolution.

Peking is even confident that in putting the Cultural Revolution back together, it can make it stronger than ever before. Mao Tse-tung teaches that the masses learn by negative example—and the problems of the Cultural Revolution have certainly been negative examples.

It is the officials who surround Chairman Mao who are responsible for most of the difficulties of the year-old revolution has gone through. They are the ones who whipped up the people's hysteria for the crash-program in socialism, while supplying them all too often with directives that were much too vague to ensure a disciplined progress. Yet despite this, Peking has shown a perception of the Cultural Revolution's shortcomings that has often been misinterpreted.

A typical misunderstanding has been the frequent reference in the Western press to the fact that only four provinces and two municipalities so far have formed revolutionary committees in support of Chairman Mao. The implication is the rest of China opposes him. The fact is that six other provinces have announced the formation of revolutionary committees, and there are indications that five more have claimed to have reached, or be close to, the same stage. But Peking has refused to recognize them. Peking also refused to accept earlier claims of the formation of urban committees in some areas, even though communes represent an even higher development in the program of the Cultural Revolution.

The reason for Peking's reluctance appears to stem from a realistic appraisal of the situation. Chairman Mao does not want his Cultural Revolution to be a paper revolution only. Peking's blessing is not given until it is certain it has been earned. Just as the old missionaries in China refused to count "false Christians" as true converts, so the Maoists want no false-revolutionaries.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First World War: Fifty years ago today—in 1917—Canadian inflicted heavy losses northwest troops repulsed three determined counterattacks and killed 1,000 French forces advanced between the Ome and the Aisne rivers, capturing Morain; Austrian troops drove Russian forces from entrenched positions south of Grozneni.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander was appointed commander-in-chief in the Middle East, succeeding Sir Claude Auchinleck; Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery was appointed to succeed Lt.-Gen. N. M. Ritchie in command of the 8th Army in Egypt; the Red Army repulsed German forces southwest of Stalingrad.

1846—U.S. Gen. Stephen Kearney captured Santa Fe from Mexicans.

1859—Germany seized Slo-

But each new step in the Cultural Revolution seems to bring its own negative reaction. Even army leaders are showing a growing tendency towards what Peking calls "conservatism." This is an obstacle which has emerged just as Peking was attempting to make more use of the military as the guiding force of the Cultural Revolution.

Peking was severely jolted when the military leaders in the important industrial centre of Wuhan recently detained two of Mao's top officials in an apparent effort to force modification on the Cultural Revolution. It is doubtful whether the Wuhan army leaders were in serious opposition to Mao in the manner later claimed by Peking. If they were intending actual rebellion, they could easily have disrupted most of China's rail communications and some of its airways, cut the vital bridge across the Yangtze River and taken the strategic Wuhan industrial complex out of Peking's control.

It is much more likely that the Wuhan leaders were trying to resolve the contradictory orders from Peking to promote the revolution and increase production at the same time. Production cannot be increased if the factories are continually disrupted by extremists waving Mao's little red book and shouting quotations.

In refusing to modify the Cultural Revolution in the manner sought by the Wuhan leaders, Peking is side-stepping the solution to a problem whose existence it refuses to admit. One of Mao's favorite quotations is that "to cure a patient, one must treat the disease." In this case, China's disease is the Cultural Revolution.

De Gaulle Emphasized Problems

CP, from Paris

The Canadian Confederation has problems which the July speeches of President de Gaulle of France spotlighted rather than caused, says a special correspondent for the influential Paris daily newspaper Le Monde.

In a long article on Canada following de Gaulle's controversial visit, Andre Passeron says all federal officials agree on the need for making the country bilingual and bicultural.

But "very few things are done to make this an everyday reality."

The sometimes "disobliging interpretations" given to de Gaulle's remarks result partly from the fact that the Canadian economy "is very tightly tied to that of the United States," says Passeron.

However, Europe and France seemed too far away and weak for any large-scale economic relations, as far as Canadians were concerned.

The French journalist believes that the government of Prime Minister Pearson supports development of "the French fact" in Canada.

"But there is insistence that this be not only to the benefit of Quebec but also to that of French-speaking communities in New Brunswick and Ontario."

"In fact, there is no desire that Quebec should be the only representative of French-Canadians... nor that the French language should serve for Quebec alone as the support shoring up its autonomist claims."

De Gaulle, says Passeron, was responsible for "a brutal indiscretion" in projecting on the world scene one of Canada's problems of unity.

These problems remained, however, despite this year's centennial celebrations, the aspiration of Expo 67 and the work of the centennial commission.

Passeron reports that only in Quebec province, outside Montreal, can exclusively French-speaking Canadians find employment. Elsewhere in Canada, the situation was even less kindly than in Montreal.

There was general approval in the Maritime provinces for the idea of bilingualism.

But in Vancouver "anti-French feeling always has existed" and practically no one spoke French there.

French-speaking Albertans and Manitobans used their language little beyond the family circle.

"An anti-English reflex" is how Passeron characterizes the support given their mother language by French-speaking Quebecers. He sees in calls for separatism, associated statehood or special status for Quebec a common "desire to see the status quo disappear."

Even Friends Alarmed At U.S. Vietnam Policy

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
From Ann Arbor, Mich.

In a gathering of 2,000 scholars of Eastern affairs it is difficult to find any who fully support U.S. policy in Vietnam.

Even friends of the U.S. say that after dreaming up a monster in theory, the Americans turned it into a reality in Southeast Asia.

The monster referred to in this case is the "domino theory," which holds that if one Southeast Asian nation should fall to communism, others will collapse as a row of dominoes.

"The domino theory has more meaning now in our area than it had before," said one expert who is a native of that area.

The United States since 1965 created a situation which makes the theory valid now. It is more likely now than before that the domino theory would prove out if the U.S. military presence should be withdrawn from Southeast Asia.

The scholars, gathered from throughout the world for the 27th Congress of Orientalists, have been speaking anonymously about the U.S. role in Southeast Asia.

The criticism heard in private is sharp, even from friends of the U.S. who fear the prospect of a rising China in their area. A sample of the kindest comment from Southeast Asians pictures the U.S. as caught in quicksand and sinking deeper all the time. Some do support Washington's policy — people from Vietnam or from Nationalist China.

The delegates seem to reflect a feeling among Southeast Asians of being torn two ways: Wishing that the Americans were less deeply involved, and at the same time fearing what might happen if the Americans decided to clear out of Vietnam — or Southeast Asia. They do not, however, expect that to happen. They express hope for a de-escalation.

tion of the war and the threat it poses to Asia.

Specialists say American mistakes were made all along the line, years ago and in the recent past, with regard to Vietnam, until a situation came about in which the Americans had a tiger by the tail and were unable to let go.

"We want the American presence in Southeast Asia as a protection," said one, "but we are anxious now about what U.S. aid can mean.

"The destruction of South Vietnam... all this frightens us."

Said another: "Vaguely we are sorry for the American government, caught in this position. But we, too, are caught in a dilemma. If you (the U.S.) stay we are in trouble. If you go, we probably will be in trouble."

Rural Domination to End

Japan's Urban Centres To Grab Political Hold

By DON SHANNON
From Tokyo

Japan's farm population fell below 30 per cent last year, making it the first urbanized Asian country and making almost inevitable the end of rural political domination.

But while farm rule is threatened, it is not yet dead. In fact, the farmers still control Japan's politics, with a vastly greater political heft than their city cousins.

The long overdue reorganization of the national legislature to give a fairer share to the city masses when it comes may bring not only changes in the balance of political parties but changes inside the party organizations as well.

Members of farming families last December numbered only 28,640,000 — a drop of 3 per cent or 920,000 from the previous year — and the number of people actually doing agricultural work fell by 420,000 to a total of only 11,000,000.

As it to remind everybody of continued farm control, however, the government announced that it will pay 130,140 yen ($361.50) a ton for the 1967 rice crop, a 9 per cent increase over last year's guaranteed price and more than twice the cost of rice imported from distant California, (which is preferred by most customers).

The entire domestic crop is controlled by the government in a curious hangerover from the near-starvation days of the period following the Second World War that has been transformed into a pork barrel for producers. "Farm Power" is impressed on every Japanese citizen who must carry a rice ration card in lieu of an identification card.

Rationed Japanese-produced rice is sold at a subsidized price nearly a third below what the government pays the farmers. Because the government, under pressure from the rural-dominated Liberal Democratic Party, has just granted another boost for the farmers, one deficit in the operation will stand at 210,000,000,000 yen ($583,000,000) this year even if the consumer price is raised an expected 14.4 per cent in October.

This crucial blow at urban pocketbooks will come at the same time that Tokyo and other cities will raise bus and subway fares and the national health service charges will be tripled. All this has the makings of a revolt in the cities just when Prime Minister Eisaku Sato is going to have to meet the problem of electoral reform for the House of Representatives.

Struggle Led by Hal Banks' Heir

Striking SIU Now 'Clean'

CP, from Montreal

A red-haired New Zealander, once known as the faithful lieutenant of the notorious Hal Banks, Thursday led Canada's inland sailors into a strike he hopes will win them "social respectability."

In his first unhampered chance at bargaining with Great Lakes shipping companies since becoming president of the Seafarers' International Union in 1964, Leonard McLaughlin has started a tough fight for updated working conditions on the Great Lakes carriers.

"There's no doubt this time that what's going on is honest bargaining with no punches pulled," says Robert Cook, president of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild and a careful observer at talks between the two sides.

Before Banks' departure from the union in 1963, observers whispered of "deals" between the SIU and the companies. In 1964 bargaining sessions McLaughlin was hampered by widespread publicity given reports of inter-union violence and upper-crust corruption.

Today, however, he feels he has an issue in the 40-hour week that "no one can deny justice demands we get."

As for the SIU's present respectability "that's something you shouldn't even have to ask questions about."

"The SIU today is as clean and democratic as any union in Canada," McLaughlin says.

Marijuana Breakthrough Made

By RUDY ABRAMSON, from Washington

American and Israeli scientists this week reported discovery of a practical method of artificially producing the elements in marijuana that are responsible for its intoxicating effects.

The development raises the possibility of new understanding about how marijuana affects the mind and body and whether the drug has dangerous side effects.

Though the intoxicating ingredients have been known for 27 years, and were successfully isolated earlier in this decade, researchers had not previously been able to synthetically produce them in a way to permit a wide understanding of the drug's action.

"At present, the hallucinogenic effects of marijuana-like drugs cannot be predicted from their activities in various laboratory animals," said Dr. Herschel Smith of Wyeth Laboratories in Philadelphia, where one of the ingredients was synthesized.

"With these pure, natural forms available, we can now study the effects of marijuana on the central nervous system and acquire a background of knowledge."

The ability to produce the materials was reported in the Journal of the American Chemical Society by chemists at Wyeth Laboratories and Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

The two materials are called tetrahydrocannabinols.

The molecular structures of its materials are mirror images of each other—that is the atoms in each molecule are arranged in the same pattern, but they are at opposite directions.

Previously, scientists had been able to formulate compounds composed of a mixture of both molecular forms, or isomers. But until now they had not been able to separate the so-called "left handed" type, which duplicates the form naturally occurring in the marijuana plant.

Dr. Raphael Mechoulam of Hebrew University, who had produced a compound containing both isomers in 1965, said "The lack of information about marijuana is due to the fact that the natural isomer has not been available until now. A pharmacologist working with a mixture cannot properly interpret his results."

Tests conducted with the new synthetic compounds on human volunteers duplicate the effects of marijuana itself, the researchers reported.

Left Turn

FERRARA, Italy (UPI) — Tranquillo Marangoni, 55, leaving a hospital after recovering from a fracture of his right leg, slipped on the hospital steps Thursday and fractured his left leg.

In Assault

Reporter Accuses Police

WINNIPEG (CP) — Wade Rowland, a 23-year-old reporter with the Winnipeg Free Press, says he was punched and kicked Wednesday night by two Winnipeg police detectives while seeking an interview for a story series he is doing on the city's hippie population.

He was assaulted, he said, when he followed the detectives up the stairs to an apartment above The Experiment, a store specializing in pop art and mod trinkets. The apartment was the residence of a young woman who has been one of Mr. Rowland's contacts.

NO CHANCE

So sudden was the assault, the reporter said, that he was given no opportunity initially to explain who he was or to present his police department press card which he was carrying in his back pocket.

His account of the encounter was given in a Free Press interview conducted by a fellow staff reporter.

Police chief George Blow declined to comment on the allegations. He suggested to the newspaper that a formal complaint be lodged either with him or with the Winnipeg police commission.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett has been asked to make sure no more comments are made by cabinet ministers regarding the interior lumber dispute while the issue remains under mediation.

The request was made Thursday by the International Woodworkers of America.

Interior workers are seeking wage parity with coast lumber workers. Mr. Justice Craig Munroe is mediating the dispute.

Lands and Forests Minister Williston said last week in Prince George, one of the areas affected by the dispute, that wage parity with the coast would shut down the interior industry as surely as a strike would.

The companies have rejected a demand by the 8,000 interior workers for a 50-cent hourly increase on the present $2.26 hourly base.

The IWA said in a letter to Premier Bennett:

"For ministers of the Crown to publicly put themselves on the side of either the union or management is eminently unfair to the man who has taken on the onerous task of mediating a dispute and extremely unfair to the party against whom such a minister may have spoken."

Fire Arrests Total Two

BATHURST, N.B. (CP)—Al and Hache, 25, of Shippegan, N.B., Thursday, was remanded without plea on a charge of inciting a person to commit arson.

Hache was the second man charged in connection with the Aug. 1 burning of a government wharf at Caraquet, about 20 miles northeast of here.

Livain Viennau, 23, of Le Goulet, N.B., was charged with arson Monday in connection with the $300,000 fire and was remanded to Sept. 2 for preliminary hearing.

The fire occurred during a controversy in which local fishermen charged that British Columbia salmoners operating in the Bay of Chaleur were tearing off herring and causing poor catches.

LBJ's Foreign Aid Bill Slashed in Senate Vote

Headache In Harrow

LONDON (AP) — Police in suburban Harrow warned parents Thursday to keep their children from playing with a girl called Pauline, who hands out "candy" in the form of orange-colored junior aspirin tablets. Five children were treated in hospital after accepting the tablets. Druggists say four is the maximum safe dose for a child.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Thursday approved a $2,600,000,000 foreign aid bill in a major legislative defeat for the Johnson administration. The vote was 60 to 26.

Swayed by arguments that the U.S. must help itself before playing keeper of the rest of the world, the Senate rejected a series of amendments by administration supporters to restore the measure to the $3,400,000,000-level recommended by President Johnson.

FINAL TOTAL

Its final total was $100,000,000 less than recommended by the Senate foreign relations committee, which had pared Johnson's original request to a level considered dangerously low by the state department and the agency for international development.

All efforts to restore the funds were resisted, including a strong plea by Sen. Robert Kennedy, to honor his late brother's commitment to the Alliance for Progress in Latin America, six years ago. The Senate sustained a $72,000,000 cut in Alliance funds asked by Johnson.

PAIRED TO BONE

The administration's foreign aid bill, already pared to the bone by the foreign relations committee, was "sliced even further."

The Senate voted 48 to 43 to reduce the development loan fund for needy countries from $600,000,000 to the current year's level of $500,000,000.

Sen. Wayne Morse, who proposed the cut, said the United States should not do for foreign countries what it is unwilling to do for its impoverished urban areas, "namely, to increase their federal financing."

Peace Pact Ignored In Yemen

BEIRUT (AP) — Republican Yemen will ignore an Egyptian-Saudi Arabian agreement to halt the war between republicans and royalists in Yemen, the Yemeni embassy in Lebanon said Thursday. Egypt has some 60,000 troops in Yemen backing republican President Abdulla Sallal and Saudi Arabia backs the royalists. The two nations recently agreed to reactivate a 1965 pact—never implemented—calling for an election on whether Yemen should be a republic.

reform of the Roman Curia was the result of four years work by Pope Paul and a special commission.

It will upgrade the Papal secretary of state into a combination of premier and foreign minister, establish a finance ministry, open the conservative Curia to lay consultants, and permit modern languages to be used along with Latin.

The staff of the Curia, now predominantly Italian, will be made international, sources said.

Top officials of the Curia are expected to be appointed for five-year terms instead of holding their posts for life. The career concept would be eliminated, with service in one post no longer automatically qualifying the holder for eventual promotion to a higher one.

The reform will come in an Apostolic Constitution. The document, which is dated Aug. 15, the feastday of the Assumption of Mary, will go into effect at the beginning of next year. It is the first major reform of the Curia since the one decreed by Pope St. Pius X in 1908.

Guards, Troopers Escort Marchers

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Gov. John McKeithen Thursday night called out 650 National Guardsmen and 175 state troopers to protect Negroes on the last leg of a 100-mile civil rights march.

"We have no other alternative," McKeithen said after conferring with Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock and state police Supt. Col. Thomas Burbank.

Burbank, charging Negroes had broken an agreement on the schedule of their 10-day march, said National Guardsmen were necessary to give them adequate protection.

"That's the first time Tom Burbank ever told me he needed the National Guard," McKeithen said.

Capital Gains Tax Partially Backed

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—A capital gains tax deserves national consideration but not on the full-rate basis proposed by the Carter report, Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin said here Thursday.

Mr. Roblin said he fears the federal government will introduce a white paper dealing with the Carter report on taxation this year, not giving the public adequate time to realize its implications.

The premier, one of nine candidates for the federal PC leadership, told local supporters Manitoba decided a capital gains tax is probably more trouble than it is worth. It upsets taxpayers and produces relatively little revenue.

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—George Hees, a candidate for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, said Thursday his major aim is to give good government to Canada, "something the present government has not done."

Mr. Hees, speaking to about 55 persons at a rally here, compared the Liberal government of former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent with that of Prime Minister Pearson.

He said the St. Laurent administration "made laws which we didn't agree with, but they made decisions."

The present government "brought the prime minister down appears unable to make a decision."

TORONTO (CP)—Progressive Conservative leadership candidate David Fulton called Thursday for the immediate charting of a federal policy on housing "to ensure... that this nation by 1970 has enough decent housing to meet the needs of every Canadian."

In a statement released at a news conference here, Mr. Fulton urged establishment of a cabinet-level department of housing to evolve into a department of housing and urban affairs.

At present housing is the concern of labor minister John Nicholson who brought the responsibility with him from the Postmaster Generalship.

Fairbanks Flood

River Slow to Recede Keeps Refugees Away

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—The dirty, brown waters of the Chena River, which bisects this flooded city of 30,000, were receding at an agonizingly slow pace Thursday.

It appeared there would be no chance for the thousands of refugees lining the hills around the city to return to their homes and businesses before Saturday.

President Johnson made available $1,000,000 in federal funds for emergency relief and recovery.

The Chena rose after rains that measured more than six inches in Fairbanks in a week.

At the same time, heavy snow fell in the mountains, to be followed by rain that washed down in torrents to build the flow of the Chena to a rate of 15,000,000 gallons of water per day on Tuesday.

DISASTER AREA

President Johnson declared a disaster area in the region around Fairbanks, Alaska's second largest city.

Mayor H. A. Boucher said: "Now we'll get the job done in time."

Anchorage and south central Alaska were declared a disaster area following the 1964 earthquake and the federal government poured in nearly $500,000,000 for reconstruction.

MORE BODIES

Two more bodies found in a log cabin near the centre of Fairbanks brought the known death toll to seven-five in Fairbanks and two in Tok, 200 miles away.

Federal, state and city officials turned their attention to dealing with damage estimated at $200,000,000.

EARLY WINTER

The threat of winter, with its heavy snow and 60-below zero temperatures, makes reconstruction urgent.

"This will be an expensive job," said Deputy Director Loren Strawn of the office of emergency planning. "We will have to accomplish about 1 1/2 years of cleanup working within 60 days to beat the winter."

In designating a disaster

Stone Age Finds In Yugoslavia Equal Greatest

BELGRADE (UPI)—Archaeologists and scholars said Thursday the discovery of a Stone Age settlement near the Danube River "is equal to the greatest European and world archaeological discoveries" of recent times.

The discovery was announced Thursday by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug. It was found near the village of Lepenski Vir, not far from the Romanian border, by an archaeological team from Belgrade University headed by Dr. Dragoslav Srejovic.

Archaeologists said sculpture, artifacts and architectural design found in the settlement show that Europeans of this period—some 8,000 years ago—were just as advanced as the highly cultured peoples of the ancient Near East.

RANK WITH TROY

Until now, they said, it was believed Europeans of the period were still in a primitive state.

Dr. Lazar Triticovic, director of the National Museum at Belgrade, said the discovery ranks in importance with the discovery of the ruins of ancient Troy.

"It not only surpasses everything discovered in Yugoslavia in the past 20 years, but is equal to the greatest European and world archaeological discoveries," he said.

Bars Were Brass

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two men appeared in court Wednesday charged with a fraud attempt involving the promised delivery of $104,100,000 in U.S. gold.

Bert Gordon Wilkins, 38, and Jim Felix Mortalibetti, 38, are charged with trying to defraud Calgary businessman Louis Wener "by the sale of six bars of metal purporting to be gold."

ONE WEEK

They were remanded one week on $10,000 bail each by Magistrate Les Bewley.

Prosecutor Stewart McMorran said the six bars were to be the first shipment of an eventual delivery of 93 tons of gold, 43 of which were in El Paso, Tex.

"This is obviously a confidence scheme from which we've been free in Vancouver for some time," he said.

BARS BRASS

Mr. McMorran said the intended victim was not completely taken by the story. Telephone inquiries were made and assays taken from six bars later seized by police.

He said the bars were brass. Defence counsel Del Black said the fact a large amount of money would have changed hands did not make the charge more serious.

He Got Behind In His Stealing

DENVER (UPI)—A service-man for the Denver Burglar Alarm Co., could have used one of his firm's more workable devices, Thomas Henderson told police he was repairing a faulty burglar alarm when a man armed with a three-foot pipe stepped up behind him and robbed him of $35.

Bonanza Awaits Title Holders

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — A $300,000 bonanza in oil royalties awaits only the claims of unknown owners, the Los Angeles petroleum administrator disclosed Thursday.

Arthur O. Spaulding said the city has been unable to determine the names of residents entitled to the royalties, which are held in a city bank account. The number of people involved is not known either.

Spaulding said the money comes from royalties through oil production agreements with Standard Oil Co. of California and Atlantic-Richfield Co.

The two firms are pumping about 4,000 barrels of oil a day out of downtown fields, Spaulding said.

And a share of the royalties paid the city is being channelled into an impound fund for the unknown owners of the mineral rights.

The city has attempted to find the owners, but insufficient information is available to identify the persons, the official said, adding: "We've gone as far back as 1880 in some title searches, but we've just run out of information."

Royalties from the Standard operation are being placed in a 10-year trust fund and royalties from the Atlantic-Richfield drilling are going into a five-year trust fund, Spaulding said.

In the event the owners are not discovered by the end of the trust periods, Spaulding said, the money will revert to the city's general fund. The final amount could total more than $1,000,000.

Spaulding said the city will "happily defer" to any person who can prove their title to the property.

Fired Coroner NDP Candidate

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Morton Shulman, dismissed earlier this year as chief coroner for Metropolitan Toronto, announced Thursday he will run as New Democratic Party candidate in Toronto's High Park riding in the next Ontario election. This riding now is represented by Allan Cowling, Progressive Conservative.

U.S. Farmers Threaten Boycott

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The militant National Farmers Organization has given United States food processors an ultimatum: increase prices for farm products or face an all-out market boycott by farmers which could "shut down the agricultural plant of America."

More than 35,000 NFO members shouted their approval of the plan and adopted the slogan, "No prices, no production," at a meeting Wednesday. No deadline for the desired price boosts was set, but NFO President Owen Lee Staley of Rea, Mo., indicated that the board of directors will not hesitate to order the all-out boycott if market conditions fail to improve.

NFO members also authorized the directors to order holding actions of three to four days on milk plus regional market boycotts on livestock.

Staley announced the NFO target on milk prices is 35¢ a hundredweight, about 75 cents over the prevailing price in the Des Moines federally regulated market.

Little Bigger Than Bag

If golfers and spectators thought it was hot trudging around Royal Colwood Golf course yesterday, they could give a thought about caddy Neal Ellison. Little bigger and perhaps not as heavy as the bag of clubs he totes, Neal, 14, went 54 holes with Lane Bennett as the Pebble Beach shotsmith polished off two opponents to gain a spot in the eighth of the Canadian Amateur championships. — (Jim Ryan)

Willingdon Copper Tops British Champ

By BRIAN DOHERTY

John Sale, a 20-year-old American, bumped two-time British amateur champion Michael Bonalack out of the Canadian amateur golf championship at the Colwood Golf Club Thursday.

Sale won, 2 and 1, against a Bonalack who has never managed to tame his putter since he has been in Canada.

Sale was two up after nine holes, lost 14 when he knocked his drive out of bounds, but came back to take 16 with a par when Bonalack hit his drive into the rough and finished with a bogey.

AFFILIATED WITH RCGA

Sale is listed among the entries as being a member of the St. Croix club Milltown, New Brunswick. He played in the combined New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island Willingdon Cup team.

But the St. Croix club is in Calais, Maine, and Sale lives in Calais, Maine, and Sale lives in at the University of Florida where he is on a golf scholarship.

The St. Croix club is on the U.S.-Canada border and half its members are Canadians. Consequently, the club is affiliated to the U.S. Golf Association and the Royal Canadian Golf Association as a member of the New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island Golf Association.

Sale, a long hitter, shot a two-under 68 in the morning as he beat Art Donaldson, 2 and 1.

HOLDS TWO TITLES

It is the first time in the Canadian amateur for Sale, who is the current Maine and New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island amateur champion.

Calgary's Keith Alexander found a hot putter to put South African Dave Symons out in the third round, 2 and 1.

Alexander began poorly when he hit two bad shots on the first hole but he sank his chip to win the hole with a birdie.

Neither was very accurate with tee shots — Alexander looked tired — but Symons won 15 to be one down. Then the scrambling and putting began for Alexander.

He sank a 25-foot par putt to halve the 16th and canned a 33-foot on 17 to win, 2 up.

KENT OUSTED

Ricky Kent of Victoria left the field in the second round when he was beaten by Doug Silverberg of Calgary, one up.

Kent, who eliminated Wayne Vollmer Wednesday, won two up after nine and lost 12 to a par. He lost 14 to a birdie and went one down when the burly Silverberg birdied 15.

Kent squared it at 16 with a par but ran into trouble on the 17th. He had a longer drive than Silverberg but the ball finished in the slick rough.

Silverberg put his second on the green but Kent didn't get the ball cleanly and dropped it in the bunker. He took two to get out and lost the hole.

They halved the 18th with

WYLLIE STILL IN

Silverberg met Bob Wyllie, also of Calgary, on the afternoon round. Wyllie won, 2 and 1, after being three up on the 13th tee.

Australian Billy Britten was eliminated in the morning round by New Zealand's Ross Murray who won, 2 and 1. Murray played Ben Kern, the 20-year-old Ontario Willingdon Cup representative, in the afternoon and won, two up.

WANTS SCHOLARSHIP

One of the smoother swingers of the day was 19-year-old Lane Bennett from Pebble Beach, Calif., who won, 2 and 1, against Terry Dill of Austin, Tex.

After Dill's 66 came pro tour newcomers Bob Lunn of Sacramento, Calif., and Lee Trevino of El Paso, Tex., another stroke behind with 67s.

Art Wall Jr., defending champion, shot a one-under 70.

Forty-six professionals in the field of 146 broke par of 71.

Lunn, 1963 U.S. public links champion, has yet to make any money in his first year as a pro.

HAS BEEN OFF TOUR

Player, who hasn't scored a victory outside of his home country in 1967, lost a playoff to Miller Barber at the end of the Oklahoma City tournament early this year. In eight tournaments, however, he has won more than $25,000.

Player said that during the past five weeks he had been home at his 1,000-acre farm near Johannesburg cutting trees, riding horses and driving a tractor.

He had only one practice round until arriving Monday in the United States.

Bob Golsby, winner of Wednesday's pro-amateur preliminary, scored 71, compared to his warmup 64.

Other highlights:

Bennett shot a four-under 66, equalling the course record, as he knocked Richard Price from Longview, Wash., out of the second round. Price shot 68.

New Zealander Boris Vesich had an eagle three on the 520-yard par five fifth.

Veitch was playing fellow-countryman Stu Jones and lost one-up.

South African Hugh Balechli celebrated his 21st birthday by beating Comrie Du Toit of South Africa, two up, to make the final eight.

Balechli said he is now hitting the ball better than he has since he has been in Canada.

Niek Mikoelski lost the first two holes to Symons when he found he had an extra club in his bag.

It was the six iron belonging to Stu Jones, who was looking around the first tee for his lost club.

Mikoelski lost to Symons, 4 and 3, but he had already lost the first hole to a Runkle of Los Angeles except that he keeps beating par and keeps winning.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Here they come!
Test trollers chartered by federal fisheries have reported a big show of pink salmon ganging up this week at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait, just inside the Bonilla-Tatoosh commercial net fishing line.
Catches of commercial netters increased five times this week over last week.
In fact they caught so many fish that netting days were cut back to three, instead of the original four, to allow U.S. netters to catch up to the Canadian catch to meet the 50-50 catch share agreement under the International Pacific Salmon Commission agreement.
That means the salmon will have one more day to swim through the 55-mile-long Juan de Fuca net line area into the new sports fishing reserve which starts at Sheringham Point.
Already Otter Point, Sooke, Secretary Island, Becher Bay, Pedder Bay and even Victoria waterfront areas have had some good sports fishing for coho and pinks in about equal numbers, with the odd big spring salmon thrown in.
The pinks arrived in good numbers last weekend and pretty well every boat was reporting a limit or near limit.
But indications are that this was only the start. Just wait until the height of the Fraser River pink salmon run spills into the sports reserve, maybe this weekend, depending upon how fast the pinks are travelling.

We didn't really go too badly when we took sports fishing biologist Dave Marshall fishing off Otter Point Friday and led him into a 30-pound spring and a couple of big scrappy coho. It must have helped to indicate that the outback on the June gillnet fishery for coho in Juan de Fuca Strait this year has paid off for sports anglers. Net days were cut back to three, totalling 49 gillnet days for 1,074 coho, compared to 204 gillnet days last June for 7,752 coho, and 458 gillnet days in 1965 for 15,345 coho. Last fall sports fishing year in Sooke water for coho was in 1963 when there were only 54 gillnet days recorded. Out of 227 boats checked in Pedder Bay to Otter Point waters at the weekend 90 chinooks, 236 coho and 295 pinks were reported.

Oak Bay waters are still producing some good fishing, but only the highlanders seem to be picking up the big ones now. There are lots of jackrabbits and coho around, but they seem to be pretty well watered.
James Island, Sidney and Coal Island waters are giving up some coho on bucktail flies and Coal and Dock Island waters some springs.

This is the big weekend for the USLAA Centennial Ladder Derby fishoff in Saanich Inlet Sunday, and indications are there will be a lot of fish caught, but few big ones.
Ken Smith's 33.4-pounder, caught Thursday off Chesterfield Rock, should be encouraging for hopefuls.

Finlayson Arm guide Gordy Lamont has been hitting fish on every trip out and on Wednesday hit into a big one. He has been using spoons and plugs.

Jim Gilbert has been checking regularly in Mill Bay waters with a 10-fish average for jacksprings and the odd coho on his new Slasher, minnows and Krippled K spoons. There seems to be a holding school of coho in the Whiskey Point area and also some coho in McKenzie Bay. Indian Bay, Henderson Point and Coles Bay have been other productive areas.

Saanich Inlet has been giving out good numbers of one-pound to two-pound spring grills.

East Point and Turnbo Channel off Saturna Island have been good spots for coho. Active Pass has faded.

Cowichan Bay is spotty. There seems to be no big concentrations, but moochers and trollers from the river mouth to Sidmer Point have been picking up some springs. Some coho are hitting the bucktail.

This week it is best to forget to report on fishing any further up-island, except for coho in Bamfield and tyee salmon taking fairly well in Alberni Inlet, Comox and Campbell River. At Gold River you have to go far down Muehalat Arm to find the tyee, which seem to be holding around Head Bay.

South Vancouver Island Rangers Inc. will hold a pre-hunting season shoot Sunday from 10 a.m. to dusk at the Luxton Ranger grounds.

There will be running deer, trap shooting and lucky circles for non-shooters. There will be a $100 prize for a perfect score on the running deer and plenty of other merchandise prizes.

Second Team Gets Coach

OTTAWA (CP)—Jack Bowman, 37-year-old veteran of professional and international hockey, was named Wednesday to coach Canada's second national team in Hull, Que., this season.

Bowman was a defenceman with the original Winnipeg-based national team last season but is not eligible for the 1968 Olympic tournament this winter because of his professional career.

Four Victoria Athletes Ready for Big Meet

By KEVAN HULL

Four Victoria athletes will be competing in Saturday's dual track meet between British Columbia and Washington.

They are Bob McLaren, Terry Ryan, John Cliff and Gerard Dumas.

McLaren, who won a bronze medal in the 400-metre hurdles and a silver as a member of the 4x400-metre relay team, will be presented with an intermunicipal merit medal by Reeve Allan Cox of Oak Bay during the opening ceremonies at 2 p.m.

CROSS COUNTRY STAFF

Cliff, the well-known cross country ace and Canadian Champion two years ago, will compete in the six-mile run which opens the program at 1:20 p.m. Cliff's best time for the event is 30:03.

Ryan was the most valuable player in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League last year and is rated as the best young sprinter in the province. He finished second to Harry Jerome in the 100-metres at the B.C. Championships this year.

VETERAN VAULTER

The French-born Dumas is still an excellent pole vaulter at 32. His best vault is 14'8" which he achieved two years ago.

Although no Victorians are on the women's team, Betsy George of Trail has done most of her training here while attending summer session at University of Victoria.

The cute 17-year-old finished second in the 80-metre hurdles during the meet against Oregon in Vancouver last Saturday.

IN TOUGH SPOT

Miss George is likely to have a tough time against Washington stars Janet Johnson and Pat Van Wolvelaere in the event at the visiting women's team could be strong enough to defeat B.C. for the first time since the provincial team was organized. The third ranked in the 400-metres in the United States, Miss Johnson has defeated Olympic gold medalist Wyomia Tyus in the 200-metres and is an excellent 100 and 220-yard

Intrepid, Columbia Score in Cup Trials

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Intrepid soundly whipped American Eagle and Columbia defeated Constellation Thursday in another pair of light weather races in the final America's Cup selection trials. The eventual trials winner was the U.S. defender against the Australian challenger, Dame Pattie, next month.

Intrepid's margin over Eagle was nine minutes, 45 seconds in the 24-mile race. She led from start to finish, with Bus Mosbacher at the helm.
Columbia, the California yacht from Newport Beach, sailed by Briggs Cunningham, came from behind to beat Constellation by three minutes, 45 seconds.
After trailing Constellation by 40 seconds at the end of the triangular lap over the course off Brenton Reef Tower, Cunningham got Columbia pointing higher and sailing faster to edge his opponent by 28 seconds at the second weather mark. Both yachts had to pinch around the mark with their sails almost aback.
On the downwind drifting leg, Columbia inched further ahead to widen the gap.
The yachts race again today, but the committee announced that the pairings would not be made until this morning.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Columbia, the California yacht from Newport Beach, sailed by Briggs Cunningham, came from behind to beat Constellation by three minutes, 45 seconds.

Ortiz-Cokes Pairing In Offing?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Boxing matchmaker Don Fraser said Thursday he hopes to arrange a welterweight championship match between lightweight fighter Carlos Ortiz and 147-pound king Curtis Cokes of Dallas.

Fraser, matchmaker for the Pacific Boxing Club, said he will meet with Ortiz next week to discuss the proposal.

He hopes to stage the match in late November or early December at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Ortiz successfully defended his lightweight crown Wednesday night by outpointing Israel Laguna of Panama in 15 rounds.

Anchorage To Be Site Ruth Tourney

SEATTLE (AP)—The Babe Ruth Baseball world series has been postponed until Monday and relocated to Anchorage, Alaska.

The tournament was to open Friday in Fairbanks, Alaska, but floods in that city covered the field.

Milton Grannett, international president, said more day games will be added in order to finish on schedule Aug. 26.

Victoria had offered to hold the tournament through Pacific Northwest regional director Will Sadler, after the flooding occurred at Fairbanks.

Cassius Clay Will Re-wed

CHICAGO (AP)—Cassius Clay, midlined world heavyweight boxing champion, and a 17-year-old girl—also a member of the Black Muslim sect—will be married here Sunday.

Clay's bride-to-be is Belinda Boyd, whose father, another Black Muslim, had to co-sign Clay's application for a marriage licence in the Couple Clerk's office Thursday.

It will be the second marriage for the 25-year-old Clay. The girl, who reportedly has had a crush on Clay since she was 14, and her father, Raymond Boyd, of suburban Blue Island, Ill., both wore Black Muslim garb at the licence-getting.

Record Price

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—Quill, winner of 14 stake races and $382,041, commanded the highest price ever paid for a thoroughbred sold at auction when she was bought Tuesday night by a Lexington, Ky., horseman for $365,000. A. B. Bull Hancock Jr. bid in the 11-year-old mare.

Five-Under-Par

Knudson Grabs CPGA Lead

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—George Knudson made a big run down the last nine holes Thursday in the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship, finishing with a five-under-par 67 and the first-round lead by one stroke.

Over the last 13 holes Knudson had eight birdies, catching up with missed pars at the first, fifth and 17th.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., came in with a 68 as the runner-up.

At 69 were Frank Whitley of Toronto and Stan Homenuik of Dauphin, Man., brother of former-champion Wilf.

Knudson was slow in getting warmed up to his play, missing the first green and three-putting the 15th. From there on he went to work with his great birdie run, his putts ranging up to 20 feet at the ninth.

Moe Norman, defending champion, started with a rush and was out in 33, but slipped to a 38 coming back and was also one under par. So was Jack Biesegger of Montreal, who had 35-36.

Veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver, eight times CPGA champion, took a 74 on nine of 35-39.

Ed Membrey, a paraplegic from Gifford, Ont., who swings one handed, finished with an 84. He was paired with his brother-in-law, Joe MacNaughton, and beat him by four strokes.

Membrey, 26, plays leaning against or holding on to the cart and bracing himself with a cane in his left hand. He swings with his right. He walks on the greens using two canes, then discards one for his putter.

Membrey failed to get a birdie on his round. He three-putted the 10th and 18th, taking a seven at the par-four home hole.

He is a member of the CPGA as teaching pro at his Golf Haven club and came into the tournament through special action by the CPGA executive.

Other championship flight results were:

West Ryde, Australia, who defeated Marce Hickey of Gifford, Australia, on the 25th hole, and Junior Liz Ferrier of Cookville, Ont., 2 and 1.

The quarter- and semi-final matches will be played today. The 35-hole final is scheduled for Saturday.

Other championship flight results were:

Scouts Leave Ottawa

SEATTLE (UPI) — The 21st Boy Scouts World Conference voted Thursday to transfer the World Bureau, the Secretariat of the World Conference, from its present location in Ottawa to Geneva, Switzerland.

It will be the second time the bureau has moved since it was established 40 years ago in London. In 1920 it was transferred to Ottawa.

Conference members said they felt because of the geographical redistribution created by the emergence of several new member countries, a move to Geneva would facilitate the operations of the bureau.

The improved facilities which the conference believes will result from the move include a better communications network.

Slain Man's Guns Weren't Touched

SHELL LAKE, Sask. (CP)—RCMP Thursday moved headquarters for their investigation of Tuesday's slaying of the Peterson family to this community of 250 people, 20 miles west from Spirit Wood.

Spirit Wood, population 710, is 16 miles west of the site of Tuesday's slaying of James Peterson, 47, his wife Evelyn, 42, and seven of their nine children. The 60-acre Peterson farm, more than half bush-covered, is just four miles west of here.

MURDER SCENE

RCMP indicated the search is being concentrated around the murder scene, 60 miles west of Prince Albert. Thursday police checked firearms, interviewed neighbors and traced strange cars reported in the area of the farm. A press briefing by police late Thursday produced nothing new.

Meanwhile, plans were made for the funeral to be held Saturday at the partly-overgrown cemetery here. The bodies of Mr. Peterson, his wife and children, aged one to 17, will be buried in two graves at the outdoor service. A community grave-digging effort was to be made Thursday night.

RCMP S. Sgt. R. E. Sondergaard said Mr. Peterson himself had "several guns" on the premises, "but all have been accounted for and none was involved in the slayings."

He said a preliminary report from the police ballistics laboratory in Regina confirmed the murder weapon was of .22 calibre and was probably a rifle.

Sgt. Sondergaard said he "wouldn't put too much credence" in reports that RCMP are working with police at San Bernardino, Calif., on a possible connection between the Shell Lake deaths and the 1965 shooting of James A. Boles, his wife and two young sons near San Bernardino.

But he added: "The RCMP here are in touch with police forces in a number of places."

CHILD SHIELDED

Police were keeping the public away from Phyllis Peterson, 4, who was found unharmed and asleep in bed between two of her sisters who were killed. She is staying with her uncle, Helmer Helgeson, on a neighboring farm.

Her oldest sister, Mrs. Lee Hill, 19, of Chetwynd, B.C., the only other surviving member of the family, was staying with her.

Mr. Helgeson said Phyllis told him she saw a strange man in the house. "She said the man looked in the dresser drawer."

DENVER (UPI)—Ted Mosley had a hunch and he played it. In so doing, the 72-year-old roofer saved the lives of three children.

Mosley was repairing the roof of a home owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gallegos Wednesday when he learned their three children were missing. Mrs. Gallegos had spent more than two hours scouring the neighborhood for the youngsters.

Mosley came down from the roof and searched a small playhouse in the back yard but found nothing. He was returning to the roof when he spotted an abandoned refrigerator in the yard.

"I played a hunch and opened the door of the refrigerator," Mosley said. As he gripped the door handle he "heard a faint thumping and what sounded like a small child crying."

Mosley opened the door and the Gallegos children—Steven, 13, Lawrence, 4, and Raymond, 2—tumbled out.

Mosley applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Raymond.

The three brothers then were taken to Denver General Hospital for treatment of shock and heat prostration.

Officials said the boys apparently had been locked in the refrigerator for at least two hours.

Villa Rides Again But Now in Spain

MADRID (AP) — Why would a Hollywood producer come to Spain to film a movie about Pancho Villa, Mexico's bandit revolutionary?

The reasons are mostly economic, partly political, says Ted Richmond, veteran of filming in Hollywood.

He will soon begin shooting Villa Rides, starring Yul Brynner and Robert Mitchum. The new film bears no relationship to the memorable 1934 movie Viva Villa! starring Wallace Beery.

"This is an entirely new story," says Richmond, "and we are doing everything to bring it up to date. For instance, Villa commands his army from a 1910 Dodge, which is based on fact. And Mitchum plays a pilot who flies reconnaissance missions for Villa Brynner."

The Paramount film could have been made in Mexico or California, either of which offers a landscape approximating that marauded by Villa just before the U.S. entered the First World War. Yet Richmond chose to make Villa Rides in Spain.

He stated that the problems with Mexico were largely political. The government there has been increasingly concerned with the Mexican image in films, as evidenced by the recently lifted ban of Frank Sinatra because of alleged slurs against Mexican divorce laws in his film Diverge on the Rocks.

But such problems appear to be minor compared to those of an economic nature. The fact remains that filming in Spain is much less expensive than in Hollywood or Mexico.

"We can make this picture in Spain for $3,500,000," said the producer. "The same production values in an American-made film would be double the cost."

Murder Charge Laid

DETROIT (AP)—A Detroit policeman accused of shooting a Negro youth during last month's riot must stand trial on a first-degree murder charge, a judge ruled Thursday.

Judge Robert E. DeMascio ordered Patrolman Ronald August bound over for trial in the slaying of Aubrey Pollard, 19.

Charges against a second white policeman, Patrolman Robert Paille, were dismissed. Paille had been charged with the slaying of Fred Temple, 15, also a Negro.

THREE KILLED

Temple, Pollard and Carl Cooper, 17, were killed by shot-gun blasts at the Algiers Motel Annex the morning of July 26, the fourth day of the most destructive racial riots in U.S. history.

The death of Cooper is still under investigation, the prosecutor's office said.

In a statement August is said to have made before his superior officer five days after the slayings, he admitted shooting Pollard in self defence. The statement was read into the court record Wednesday by Lieut. Elmer J. Reed, who testified he had heard August make the statement.

MOTEL SCENE

Three days of testimony in the examination focused on August's actions at the motel.

One witness, Theodore Thomas, a national guard warrant officer, testified he saw August, armed with a shotgun, lead a Negro youth into a motel room.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — Barry Goldwater says Black Power advocate Stokely Carmichael should be tried for treason and, if found guilty, executed.

The former Arizona Senator said Carmichael should be arrested when he returns from Cuba.

While saying he does not know if Communists are inciting riots in U.S. cities, Goldwater said: "If I were a Communist, I certainly would be working right in there with the Carmichaels and the Ray Brewsas. They should be treated as traitors and the penalty should be given to them."

LONDON — Merle Parke, 29, has been announced by the Royal Ballet as the replacement for Dame Margot Fonteyn as dancing partner for Rudolf Nureyev when the Royal Ballet season opens this fall. In Stockholm Nureyev denied all knowledge of the change.

OTTAWA — Revenue Minister Benson, president of the treasury board, says he cannot understand where Opposition Leader Stelmach found the basis for calling him a "pusillanimous pussy-footer."

PHILADELPHIA — Robert De George, 32, a tannery shop steward, has been shot dead outside the union headquarters in Philadelphia. Police said the death climaxed a shootout with five or six men participating.

ATLANTA — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. says he "very definitely" will oppose President Johnson in 1968 and many endorse and campaign for another candidate if the president's Vietnam policy does not change.

PARIS — Police have begun to suspect theft or blackmail in the murder of 28-year-old NATO interpreter Michel Badrelet, police sources said.

HANWEILER, Germany — Police said Mrs. Elsa Weyland was killed by her automatic washing machine. They said the 67-year-old housewife operated the machine wrongly and it poured boiling water over her.

WASHINGTON — U.S. Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach has told Congress declarations of war were out of style in situations like Vietnam.

MELBOURNE — Blonde stowaway Sandra Hilder, discovered in the admiral's cabin minutes before a U.S. Navy cruiser was due to sail from Sydney in April, is engaged but not to the man for whom she stowed away. An American TV station paid her way to the U.S., where she met her new fiancé.

LONDON — Beatle drummer Ringo Starr is about to become a father again, a Beatles spokesman said. His wife Maureen, 21, is expecting her second child by this weekend. They have a 22-month-old son named Zak.

MONTREAL — Industrialist Cyrus Eaton and Dmitri Polyansky, deputy chairman of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R., discussed "ways and means of promoting Soviet-U.S. friendship."

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Fulbright says the U.S. might never have intervened in the Bay of Pigs, the Dominican Republic or Vietnam, if Congress had been consulted.

ROME — The Rome newspaper, Il Messaggero, reports a 45-year-old blind Brazilian woman, Lella Vellai Achos, claimed to have regained her sight during an audience with Pope Paul. Vatican sources said there appeared to be no question of a miracle.

'Vive!' Helps Dieppe

DIEPPE, France (UPI) — A senior Canadian official said Thursday local French reaction to the row over President Charles de Gaulle's "Vive Quebec Libre!" statements had a "favorable effect" on preparations for Saturday's 25th anniversary of the British-Canadian Dieppe raid of 1942.

"The people of Dieppe are working hard to help us," the officials said.

The reaction of Frenchmen in this channel port appeared to be similar to that of a Normandy beachhead town which recently named a street after a Canadian general. They appeared anxious to show their full sympathy with Canadians who helped save France in two world wars.

Tonight Canada's associate minister of defence Leo Cadieux was arriving in Paris at the head of a large Canadian delegation which will take part in Saturday's ceremonies.

What they were commemorating was the first major raid on the channel coast of Adolf Hitler's "fortress of Europe."

Some 5,000 Canadian troops,

1,100 British commandos and a detachment of 30 U.S. Rangers took part in the raid to test the strength of the German coastal defences. They suffered nearly 4,000 casualties, including more than 2,000 Canadians taken prisoner.

General Says Troops Like Uniform

TORONTO (CP) — Controversy over the new green uniform for Canada's unified armed forces is not reflected among Canadian troops serving with NATO in Europe, says retired Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, 78.

"They want it, and want it as quickly as possible," he says after a visit to NATO troops in Germany.

Gen. Worthington, who is retired from active service, was in Europe as colonel-commandant of the Royal Canadian Armoured Corps to present the annual trophy for tank gunnery among the NATO forces.

He says in an article in The Telegram that he was the first Canadian to wear the new uniform in Europe and "the reaction among all ranks was one of outright enthusiasm and impatience to get it."

Mice Besiege City

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Travelling on its stomach, a squeaking army of field mice poised on the outskirts of Sarajevo Thursday after eating its way through the Bosnian countryside.

Bosnia's farmers, who provided the backbone of underground resistance to the Nazis in Second World War, were powerless to repel the hungry legions of mice crawling forward and devouring hundreds of acres of food and vegetables ready for harvest. Unable to come up with a strategy to counter the mice, authorities in the republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina were reduced to hoping the scurrying horde would starve to death when the food runs out.

The local government and the Yugoslav Red Cross rushed relief supplies to villagers and farmers whose fields, bountiful only a few days ago with wheat, beans, onions and potatoes, lie devastated and bare. Some authorities said the farmers themselves were responsible for the trouble. They explained that farmers and hunters killed off many of the region's foxes, natural enemies of the mice, and the field mice population burgeoned unchecked. Female field mice produced about 300 young a year. Millions of mice appeared a few days ago in the fields of Kalinovik, 25 miles south of Sarajevo, and by Tuesday the army had advanced 10 miles along a 12-mile front. Travelling at night, the mice Friday reached Iliza Mountain overlooking Sarajevo, the city where Austrian Archduke Ferdinand was assassinated in 1914, an act that triggered First World War. No one has been able to devise a feasible plan to rid the area of mice.

A suggestion to poison them was rejected. Officials said the poison would kill the mice but it might destroy farm animals and wildlife at the same time. Some responsible officials said nothing could be done until the mice destroyed all the crops and began dying of starvation.

Pearkes Asks: Did Corps Break Law?

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes has asked for legal opinion on whether the Canadian Corps of Commissioners in Victoria has broken provincial labor laws, he informed the Three Cees Association in a letter.

Replying to a Three Cees letter, urging that he resign as patron of the corps because of alleged contravention of the act, he said, "I hope it will be possible to adjust the differences which still exist between the Three Cees and the Victoria corps."

"I shall have to obtain legal information as to whether the actions of the corps are contrary to the Unfair Labor Practices Act."

DEADLINE PASSED

Tuesday's deadline for members of the corps to choose between it and the Three Cees passed with no one resigning from either, and so far no one being expelled.

Corps commandant C. M. R. A. C. Wurtels had said that Three Cees members would be expelled from the corps if they continued membership in the association.

Three Cees secretary Donald Sykes commented after the deadline had passed, "I believe the corps has realized that it has made a serious mistake."

SAV PETERSON

Mr. Sykes said the association had been to see Labor Minister Peterson and Mayor Hugh Stephen, and had presented to the premier and to the attorney-general's department, about the corps' ultimatum.

"This action may have helped to prevent layoffs," he said. Mr. Sykes said the Three Cees group was anxious to have talks with the corps, but under certain conditions.

OPEN BOOKS

First, there would have to be a reopening of all cases of layoffs on the Three Cees books, he said.

Mr. Sykes also demanded that the corps lay open its financial books.

"We want to know what is happening to the members' money," he said.

"We want to know if anyone is receiving honorariums or unlimited expense accounts, and for how much."

"No one has need to hide if there is nothing to fear," he said.

He also asked that the corps submit to an impartial hearing into its activities.

"Our fight with the corps has dragged on for 18 months, and they have yet to answer the charges we have made."

Mr. Turpin, a farmer of Saanich, appeared in court yesterday to answer a summons of having shot and killed a dog, valued at $50, the property of Mr. James Lowe. Evidence was taken on both sides and the defendant finally pleaded guilty, but alleged in extenuation that he had lost a large number of sheep and dogs recently through the depredations of dogs. The magistrate thereupon inflicted a fine of $5 with the costs added. The fine was paid.

The Olympics and the Cricketers will engage in a friendly contest of baseball for the championship at two o'clock this afternoon on Beacon Hill.

But Panic Over

Water Commissioner Changes Headaches

Despite a lack of rain in the foreseeable future, the panic is over in the Victoria water situation, according to water commissioner Ronald Upward.

He has, however, exchanged one headache for another, as forest closure threatens to stop work on the Sooke tunnel.

"Today, at 9 a.m., I shall be on my hands and knees at the forest ranger's office, begging for a permit to continue work in the closed area."

WORK UNDERGROUND

"Since we are working 1,000 feet underground, I'm hopeful he'll let us go through the woods to work."

Mr. Upward said any delay now would make next spring's completion that much later. "I hope the ranger will help us, knowing the trouble we have had with our water supply," he added.

SUPPLIES ADEQUATE

He said that in the Greater Victoria district, water supplies are now adequate for the decreasing demand.

The latest, three-day-a-week sprinkling regulations are working well, he said Thursday, and as long as customers continue to co-operate, he can see no problems with water distribution.

"We have enough water for domestic use and half the usual sprinkling use," he said. "Water consumption seems to be under 22,500,000 gallons under the latest restrictions, and we can handle that."

LONG SUMMER

"I think a lot of people only needed a nudge to give up watering altogether," he said.

"It's been a long summer for gardeners. I know I'm glad to be back and let things go. Established lawns will come back all right in the fall, anyway."

SYSTEM WORKS

He said the honor system in requesting householders to sprinkle on alternate days is working well.

Meanwhile, Saanich officials pointed out Thursday that the municipality is issuing permits for special sprinkling concessions.

The permits are available only to greenhouse owners, nurseries, wholesalers and retailers of plants, and homeowners who have newly-seeded lawns less than three weeks old.

APPLY AT OFFICE

They can be obtained at the municipal hall between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on weekdays. The spokesman said this means anyone who wants a sprinkling permit for the weekend should apply at the Saanich engineering office before 5 p.m. Friday.

The permits are valid for the remainder of the year, or until Greater Victoria Water Board lifts its restrictions.

The official weather forecast calls for slightly cooler temperatures, but there is no sign of rain.

For the weekend, sunny weather with temperatures in the high 60s is forecast.

Friendship Offered By California City

By JOHN MATTHEWS

Victorians Thursday were invited to follow the Monarch butterflies to Pacific Grove, Calif.

The invitation came from two envoys of Pacific Grove, here to tell the Victoria Chamber of Commerce about their beautiful seaside town that's renowned as the focus of the migration of millions of Monarchs.

During September and October, trees are covered in a stunning display of the insects, they said.

The Victoria chamber exchanged with Miss Alice Gelschen and Wendell Stack an "alliance of friendship."

They said they chose Victoria for this special relationship because it has similar natural beauties that remain unspoiled by blatant promotions.

The city of 10,000, which is 130 miles south of San Francisco, sent to the Victoria chamber a large scroll commemorating the exchange.

'Follow The Monarchs'

One of the ideas is that Pacific Grove will encourage its citizens to visit Victoria during the summer months and the Victoria chamber will encourage people to go to the California centre for their winter holidays.

Pacific Grove is on the Monterey Peninsula, only a few miles from places such as Carmel and Monterey. Monterey has been immortalized by Nobel prize-winning novelist John Steinbeck in such books as Cannery Row.

It is the second California centre which has a special relationship with Victoria. Earlier this year, the city and Palm Springs decided to become "sister cities" — an idea which almost has the same objectives as the chamber of commerce's alliance of friendship.

Pacific Grove is known as Butterfly Town because it is the home for the Monarchs, who migrate to the north during the summer and whose offspring return next fall to the same trees where their parents wintered.

Thursday's proclamation, signed by Mayor Earl Grafton, said the alliance of friendship should lead to more understanding and cultural exchanges.

French-English Clash Has Negro Link

By BILL STAVDAL

The Detroit riot has lessons for Canadians, says sociologist Dr. Rudolph Helling, who lived and researched in the Motor City's black ghetto before it erupted.

"The U.S. treatment of Negroes and the Canadian treatment of French-Canadians have a lot of similarity," Dr. Helling said this week at the University of Victoria.

Unless Canada's French and English elements come together with mutual respect, they are apt to drift into opposite extremes, said the 37-year-old head of the department of sociology and anthropology at the University of Windsor.

Dr. Helling is ending seven weeks of teaching at the summer session at UVic. Last winter the German-born, U.S.-educated scholar was busy on a survey of employment in the slum areas of Detroit.

It was in the survey area, including Detroit's 12th Street, that the worst riots in U.S. history broke out late in July. From 1955 to 1958, Dr. Helling and his wife lived two blocks off 12th Street while he was studying for his doctorate at Wayne State University.

Last winter's study team which he headed was commissioned by the U.S. Department of Labor and the Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations at Wayne State University.

The researchers discovered a pattern of large families, poor education and sickness, and low pay among those

Dr. Helling quoted figures who were working. The researchers discovered a pattern of large families, poor education and sickness, and low pay among those

Among those looking for work and polled by survey team, 53 per cent had some kind of health problem or physical impairment that interfered with their chances of finding work.

Compared to Detroit's overall unemployment rate of 3.8 per cent, the researchers found that white males had an unemployment rate of 4.9 per cent, white females 5.2 per cent, Negro males 7.2 per cent, and Negro females 17.6 per cent.

"In Canada we have the pillow treatment for complaining minorities. It smothers you," said Dr. Helling, a naturalized Canadian.

The pillow treatment, according to Dr. Helling, involves expressing shock and surprise at grievances, the collecting of petitions and the expression of sympathy, while nothing is done.

Social Expert Reports

Helling

"If you complain, they put you through the grievance machinery. If it's a large matter, the machinery may be a royal commission," he said.

This lack of response to grievances by the majority can eventually drive a minority to extremes, he warned.

"Many aspects of French-Canadian problems can be channelled into violence."

Poor education has contributed to higher unemployment among French-Canadians, he said.

"It's easy for the French to blame their problems on a plot by the English."

"We should not polarize our society. We should recognize the goals and aspirations of both French and English."

"My biggest fear is that there will be such a polarization in Canada."

"A sober restraint is the foundation of inter-group relations at the present time," he said.

Trousseau Tea Honors Miss Janes

Bride-elect Miss Nancy Janes, whose marriage takes place this Saturday, was entertained at a trousseau tea by her mother Mrs. S. Janes in their Schram Drive home recently. Assisting in greeting guests was the mother of the groom-elect Mrs. R. J. S. Tracy, and in charge of the guest book was his grandmother Mrs. D. H. Marshall. Mrs. N. ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I had a bridge game last night and invited a substitute. The woman hadn't been in my home 20 minutes when she received a phone call. It seems her poodle was upset when she left the house and her husband couldn't quiet her. We heard him say, "Madame Lazonga is having a nervous breakdown. Please speak to her for a few minutes."

The woman talked to that dog for 12 minutes. I could feel my blood pressure mounting. After she hung up she said, "Madame Lazonga is just like a child. You girls who have children know what it's like when a youngster won't go to sleep."

I resisted the interruption. But I resisted the comparison even more. Will you comment please? STILL STEAMING.

Dear ANN: Well, here we go again. Every time I say pets are pets and should not be confused with people, about 20,000 animal lovers accuse me of being a mean old woman, a Communist and mentally ill. I will simply say there is a line to be drawn and rational people know where to draw it.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a wife who was mad because her husband wouldn't roll up the tube of toothpaste. Then a nitwit wrote that she was ready to leave her husband because he kept saying "without" instead of "unless." Another nitwit was hysterical because her husband wouldn't let her see him without his dentures. She felt "left out."

An old maid wants to call the police because her neighbor hangs out the wash on Sunday. A teen-ager gripes because Mom flicks the porch light off and on while she is saying good night to her boy friend. A young kid screams his head off

The trouble with these lunatics is they have never had any real trouble in their lives. Why do people write about such trifles anyway? And why do you print such nonsense?—OTTAWA, MALE

Dear OT: Letters like the ones you describe serve a useful purpose because they help put the two-bit, penny ante gripes in proper perspective. Now what is YOUR problem, Mister?

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Haines, 611 Roseridge Place, announce the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter, Alice Adele, to Constable Gary Stephen Vianowski, RCMP, son of Mr. S. Vianowski of Hamilton, Ont., and the late Mrs. Vianowski. The marriage is to take place Sept. 2 at 8 p.m. in Como Lake United Church, New Westminster.

Heirloom Amethyst Necklet

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. John's Anglican Church, Colwood, when Patricia Linda Cochrane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Cochrane of Duke Road, Albert Head, was married to Mr. Gerald Christopher Ridley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clement H. Ridley of Metcosh Road.

Rev. H. Dunster officiated. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a satin dress designed with Empire waist and a lace overcoat with long pointed sleeves. She wore her great-grandmother's necklet of pearl and amethysts and carried a white Bible with white carnations and small pink roses.

Her attendant was Miss Maureen Forsey who wore a pale blue lace tent dress and carried pink carnations in a colonial bouquet.

Best man was Mr. George Edmund. At the reception in the Buffalo Club, Langford, Mr. George Gurney proposed the toast to the bride. Head table was decorated with sweet peas and white candles.

For a honeymoon at Banff the new Mrs. Ridley changed into a lace dress with notched neckline.

On returning Mr. and Mrs. Ridley will live at 2913 Pickford Road, Victoria.

Azalea-Pink Wedding Theme

UNION BAY — The communities of Denman Island and Union Bay shared interest in the summer wedding of two of their young people in St. George's United Church, Courtenay.

Rev. Allen F. Crewe performed the ceremony uniting Christine Donna McKay, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil McKay, Denman Island, and Roy William McKay, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilma B. McKay, Union Bay.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her floor-length gown of white tulle taffeta. Fashioned on sheath lines, it featured a scoop neckline, with lace applique of the waist and on the long 18-point sleeves. The lace edged train extended from the shoulders, and the short, bouffant veil of layered illusion net was topped with white petalled headpiece set with rhinestones.

A pendant of rhinestones with carvings to match, completed the bridal ensemble. Wedding flowers were azalea-pink roses and stephanotis, arranged in a colonial bouquet.

Attending the bride were Miss Carol Anne Harvey, Courtenay, bridesmaid, Miss Jane Lewis, Victoria, maid of honor, and Marie Ellis, niece of the groom, flower girl.

Identical floor-length sheath gowns of azalea crepe were worn by the bridesmaid and maid of honor. They were sleeveless and featured lace bodices. Each wore a matching petal headpiece with veiling, and carried tiny yellow and white chrysanthemums.

The little flower girl wore a floor-length dress of pale green cotton brocade with overlay of chiffon in the same shade. She wore white gloves and slippers, yellow and white flowers in her hair.

Donald Arkell, Courtenay, was best man, with Glen McKay, brother of the groom, and Don Pardie, brother-in-law of the bride, acting as ushers.

The wedding reception was held in Union Bay Community Hall which had been decorated with an abundance of summer flowers, pink and white streamers and wedding bells.

The wedding cake, made by the bride's mother was decorated by Mrs. Ed Millard, Denman Island.

Mr. Gordon McIntyre of Courtenay proposed the toast to the bride.

For a honeymoon in California, the bride changed into an Italian-knit two-piece pink wool suit and a flowered hat.

On returning, Mr. and Mrs. McKay will reside at Vernon Lake Camp, northern Vancouver Island.

Banff Trip Follows Candlelight Wedding

Linda Anne Burrows and Frederick Thomas Kroening were married recently at candlelight service held in Esquimalt United Church.

Rev. Hartwell Ilsey officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Burrows, 1337 Lyall and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kroening, 2670 Peart.

Miss A. Stelck was organist. The bride, who walked to the altar with her father, was a picture in her wedding gown of white organza over peau de soie fashioned with a cathedral train. Her three-tiered veil was held by a circlet of orange blossoms and silver leaves, and the bridal bouquet was of white gladioli centred with pink rosebuds.

Mrs. J. Grinyer was matron of honor and the Misses Gayle Ellard and Mary-Lynne Anderson, bridesmaids. They wore dresses of aqua chiffon over peau de soie and headpieces of orange blossoms. Their bouquets were of salmon pink gladioli.

Mr. Reg Oliver was best man and acting as usher were Mr. J. Grinyer, Mr. R. Hall and Mr. G. Burrows, Jr.

The reception was held for 160 guests at the Carlton Club where George Kraeling's Orchestra played for dancing. The bride's table was centred with a tiered cake decorated in silver and white. Mr. L. D. Clarke proposed the toast.

Leaving for a honeymoon at Banff the new Mrs. Kroening.

SARDINE TREAT
Children really go for this lunchtime treat. Cut the whole loaf of Italian bread lengthwise. Spread mayonnaise generously on each half. Line one side with crisp lettuce leaves. Form a layer of sliced tomatoes, cucumbers and top with well drained tiny Norway sardines. Sprinkle with a little lemon juice. Press second half of bread firmly on top, cut in half and watch it disappear. It's like magic.

Piper at Reception Heralds Newlyweds

St. Aidan's Church was the setting for a pretty wedding recently when Shoshana Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Monahan, Rosedale Crescent, became the bride of William Arthur Herd, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Herd, Admirals Road.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her long gown of delicate satin with yoke and bell sleeves of ruffled lace. A shoulder length veil of tulle was held in place by a decorated satin bow and she carried a cascade of Tulleman roses and ivy.

Miss Marilyn Monckton was made of honor for her sister and Mrs. D. Rees was bridesmaid. They wore dresses of burnt orange with shantung, A-line style and their headpieces were of the same flowers in their bouquets of orange and white glisteria.

Mr. Peter Herd was best man for his brother and showing guests to the pews were Mr. David Chewpoy and Mr. David Rees.

The wedding party was piped into the reception room on

Explosion of Color

By KARIN MOSE

MONTREAL (CP) — An explosion of color highlighted Indian costumes, presented at a sneak preview of a fashion show at Expo 67, marking the 20th anniversary of India's independence.

The fashions reflect the skill and tradition of the Indian weaver, said Ayesha Belg, show moderator at India's pavilion.

"The rich resources of natural fibres, vegetable dyes that put the rainbow to shame, the skill of ages... and the labor of love are the story of Indian textiles and costumes."

India's famed Dacca muslin is a web so fine that a roll of five yards passes through a wedding ring effortlessly, said Miss Belg.

With the subtle strains of Indian music in the background, the pavilion's hostesses paraded a brilliant array of costumes worn in various parts of India for different occasions.

Outstanding was a bridal ensemble in a deep shocking pink. The outfit was lavishly trimmed with gold, further enhanced by an abundance of heavy gold jewelry which included the traditional forehead decoration and the jeweled nose ring.

"The nose ring does not symbolize slavery or anything like that," laughed model Poorima Saldani. "It is merely decorative and is worn traditionally by all Indian brides."

Miss Saldani displayed her gaily decorated fingers and explained:

"We always paint our hands quiet elaborately with henna, a sort of Indian dye which remains for several weeks before it wears off. Usually friends and relatives paint the hands and fingers for the bride while they sing lilting tunes of bridal songs."

"Red is the lucky color for Indian women," said Mukta Srivastava, sporting a heavily jewelled banjara, the costume of the Saurashtra shepherd girl. "Nearly everything we wear has some red in it and bridal outfits in particular are always red or pink."

The banjara was in complete contrast with the loosely-fitted sari modelled by other girls. The banjara consists of a swirling skirt in a vivid design, and a short blouse heavily appliqued with tiny oval colored mirrors. Silver jewelry and a necklace of silver coins is also typical.

Duncan Lake Dam Opened by Bennett

LARDEAU (CP) — Premier Bennett Thursday officially opened the Duncan Lake Dam, first of three dams to be constructed under the Columbia River Treaty.

But there are still financial details to be worked out. The United States owes $12,000,000 for downstream flood control benefits. The payment was to be made July 31, the day the dam went into operation.

"The cheque hasn't come through yet, but that's not United States' fault," Premier Bennett said.

"Ottawa is holding this money up. I had no idea the federal government was so hard up. If it wants $12,000,000 I'll loan it to them—with interest."

He declined to give further details about the payment.

But the Duncan project, all $33,000,000 of it, is operating.

The opening ceremonies took place in 50-degree heat despite hazy skies from the smoke fire in the Nelson district and a stiff breeze off the newly-erected Duncan Lake.

In his dedication speech, the premier complimented officials of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority and construction and engineering firms that worked on the dam.

"They managed to get the dam operating a year before it was due, there wasn't a single life lost on the project, and they managed to make us a profit on the deal," said the premier.

"I hope they can do as well on the other Columbia River dams, the High Arrow and the Mica."

The Duncan dam is 120 feet high, 2,500 feet long. The reservoir area is 29 square miles and contains 400,000,000 gallons of water, enough to supply the city of Vancouver for 10 years.

It is located on the Duncan River near this southern B.C. community at the north end of Kootenay Lake.

Counter Jumper Jailed

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A young woman who ran afoul of new British Columbia legislation covering drinking drivers was remanded for a pre-sentence report Wednesday on a charge of assaulting a police officer.

Police said the woman jumped onto a counter and yanked a policeman's arm when he refused to return her suspended driver's licence.

Under the recently-enacted law, police officers have authority to make a 24-hour licence suspension when they believe a motorist may be impaired. Maureen Little pleaded guilty to assaulting an officer and was remanded in custody until Aug. 25.

McRae Property Worth $796,200?

A value of $796,200 was set on the McRae property Thursday by Leslie E. Pope, vice-president of Ker and Stephenson Ltd. It was the highest value set so far on the 140-acre tract by a witness for the expropriating authority, Saanich, which took the land over some months ago to add to the municipality's parkland.

Previously a value of $755,000 was put on the land by Jack Linday, assessor and land commissioner for Saanich.

CLAIM $3,500,000

Appraiser-witnesses for the McRae estate have set the worth of the land at $3,070,000 and $3,500,000 respectively. The former claim being made by the estate is for the latter sum.

Mr. Pope, a veteran appraiser, said the McRae estate was comparable with land in the Gordon Head area, although he thought lots in the latter area would command better prices.

Questioned as to the property's potential as a site for high-rise apartments, the appraiser said the trend in the past two years was not toward concrete high-rise buildings but to three storey, elevator-equipped frame apartment buildings.

The trend seemed to be to place high-rises, if they were built, on land in such built-up areas as James Bay.

In general, he added, there was no shortage of apartments in Greater Victoria; as evidenced by the fact that there were 251 suites vacant on May 1, 1967.

The hearing continues today at the Victoria Law Courts. Counsel for the municipality is believed to have at least one more witness, after which there will be argument by counsel.

Argument and summations will probably take most of next week — the fifth week of the arbitration hearing.

LONDON (UPI) — For sale cheap: A 300-square-foot pop art mural, featuring monsters yelling "ka-blam!" or "skreeeee!"

The clothing store which ordered the mural as part of the decor of its boys' department is offering it for sale for $3 a linear foot, or a little over $300 in all.

"For anyone wanting a pop art mural 104 feet long," a company spokesman said, "this is a marvelous bargain."

Man Guilty in City Hall Fire

A man charged with setting a fire in Victoria City Hall Aug. 4 was found guilty in central magistrate's court Thursday by Magistrate William Oatler.

The magistrate determined that Ingvald R. Moore, 29, of 1224 Pembroke, had "willfully and unlawfully set fire to paper that was likely to cause a building to wit, Victoria City Hall, to burn."

The evidence showed that city clerk Morran Waller had noticed a man on the second floor of the City Hall on the afternoon in question, and had found smoke belching from a used-towel container in a men's washroom on that floor.

PULLED ALARMS

Mr. Waller pointed out the suspect to police when he re-entered City Hall minutes later, on the heels of the firemen. Under questioning, the accused denied setting the fire.

He did say, however, "I pulled fire alarms for two years, but I was smart. They didn't catch me."

Defence counsel Robert Price asked dismissal on the grounds the Crown had not sufficiently tied Moore with the actual setting of the fire. He also said the evidence of Deputy Fire Chief R. J. Coates had not proved the likelihood of the fire spreading.

DENIED MOTION

Magistrate Oatler denied the motion for dismissal, holding that the preponderance of evidence showed the likelihood of the fire increasing.

Mr. Price called no witnesses and continued in the same vein in argument, saying "the onus is still on the Crown to prove this fire was set, and by this accused, and with willful intent."

Magistrate Oatler ordered pre-sentence and psychiatric reports, and set Aug. 25 for sentencing.

Phyllis M. White of 1000 Tillium was fined $200 when she pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Magistrate Oatler deferred decision on licence suspension, pending a probation report.

The evidence showed Mrs. White was arrested at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday on the Old Island Highway.

In central traffic court, Elizabeth R. Smyk of 93 Linden was fined $50 and had her licence suspended for four months when she pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

The evidence showed she was found slumped over the wheel of a car at 6:20 p.m. July 13 in the 3300 block Cook.

Fined for careless driving were:

Gary W. Mickelson of 640 Fairways, $40; Daniel A. Nieman of 131 Sims, $50.

Victor Earl Winter, 19, of HMCS Saskatchewan, was fined $100 for driving while his licence was under suspension.

Evidence showed he was arrested at 10:50 p.m. Wednesday on Dunsmuir Road and admitted having a licence suspension.

Joseph Cardin of 820 Gorge

West, was fined $10 for lighting a fire without a permit July 30, same charge. The evidence contravening a Saanich bylaw, showed an overloaded incinerator caused a grass fire July 24.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

This deal in the 1967 World Championship presented East with a difficult defensive problem - which he did not solve. But if you take over the East cards, you can beat the contract by following a precept that will serve you well in countless other defensive situations.

That precept is as follows: in any situation where your choice of options is very close, you should usually go for a play that will impair declarer's communications. Experience shows that this works out most of the time.

The French East didn't do that. West opened a small diamond, dummy played the jack, East the ace, and declarer - Norman Kay of the North American team - ruffed. To make the slam, Kay had to lose only one trump trick. Against best defence, the hand is unmanageable if declarer starts normally by finessing dummy's heart queen - as Kay, of course, did. The question now was, what should East return?

Where it is next to impossible for a defender to figure out all possible variations, he should attack declarer's communications. Accordingly, East should return the spade queen, removing a precious entry from declarer's hand and making it impossible for him to make his contract.

When the French East won the trump trick, the 1,000 strong audience expected him to return a spade routinely. But then it was observed that East had gone into a huddle. The Bridge-Rama commentators just had time to exclaim: "The may return a trump!" when East did just that, handing Spade the slam on a platter.

Here is the Thursday night-

Fire Story

Power for the troubled communities of Tofino and Ucluelet was restored at 6 p.m. Thursday, after about 30 hours of outage. A store manager demanded a better Auxiliary plant, commenting: "Even if it's a white elephant for two years, it would pay for itself in 30 hours."

Mrs. Lady Rose finished its Bamfield run and went immediately to Ucluelet, to pick up stranded loads of tourists and fish, and run them to the Alberni.

"This will kill the summer in Tofino," said one merchant. "We won't make a nickel here now. We are in dire straits. The fish packers are in real trouble."

A Forest Service spokesman said the fire is crowning, moving through the tree tops. "It ran up the hills and there was just no stopping it."

Power from the small auxiliary unit was being switched at six-hour intervals back and forth between Tofino and Ucluelet, to give deep-freeze material a fighting chance to survive the power shortage.

Secondary fire lanes were constructed by firefighters, and a spokesman said these would eliminate some danger of the fire spreading if a wind comes up.

Tofino businessman Nick Seymour said "Mr. Gagliardi should sell his Goddam Lear jet and use the money to buy us a better power plant." But M.L.A. Howard McDermid said this would not be economical.

The big fire was just one of 300 fires being battled in British Columbia. Woods closure came into effect. The fire was described as "exploding" through the woods.

J. T. Walter, owner of a Tofino store, said the village has been without power "23 times" since last fall. A B.C. Hydro spokesman pointed out this would include the winter, when snow knocks out the lines.

'Forest Threat Is Explosive'

DUNCAN — Shortly before the complete forest closure on the east coast of the Island, a logging official expressed dismay that recreational use of the woods had been continued so long in dry forests.

W. J. Loukes, logging manager of MacMillan Bloedel, told Duncan Chamber directors "the public is more than ever aware of the explosive fire danger."

"The B.C. Forest Service gives a lot of credit to companies for their voluntary closure of the woods under their control."

Mr. Loukes stressed the latest reading showed a record low humidity.

There will be no major change according to the forecast and forest officials are hopful the public will be extremely careful when entering the woods.

Chamber secretary Arthur Stevenson bore out Mr. Loukes' earlier statement and told the directors that tourists coming to the chamber information bureau show their awareness of the danger, and are very concerned.

The number of tourists calling at the information centre during the first two weeks of August reached 665, an increase of 114 callers over last year during the same period.

Acting chairman Sam Keeble said his committee recently decided to keep the tourist information centre open until 9 p.m. from Mondays until Fridays and on Saturdays until 5 p.m.

PORT ALBERNI—What do you take with you, when you must suddenly flee your home in the path of a forest fire?

That problem faced anxious residents in the Spruce Lake area, as the Tofino Road forest fire swept through 3,000 acres.

For the first time in many days families rose to find no sun shining. As they rubbed sleep from their eyes, residents thought the weather had changed and clouds had rolled in.

Then they realized it was not cloud that covered the sky, it was smoke!

They looked in vain for mountain landmarks that are seen most summer mornings. There was nothing beyond the trees but a grey, smoke-filled emptiness.

ASH RAIN

Apricot Lake residents watched grimly as ash and soot from the fire powdered trees and buildings. Most were women and youngsters.

The men were either at work at their regular jobs or busy helping fight the blaze.

The women visited among themselves, pondering what they should do if the call came to evacuate their homes, loathe to get too far from the radio which might give them some news of the fire's progress.

TAKE PETS

What do you take when you are told to evacuate your home? Worse, what do you leave behind?

I talked to a couple of friends living within a mile of the turn-off to the Tofino Highway. What should they try to take?

"The kids, the dog and the cat!"

MAKS DOWN

Residents at the lake listened to the Mars water bomber warm up, only to learn it could not take off into the smoke.

The fire is in an area where flying a plane is a tricky job even when you can see where you're going. It's rugged, mountain country.

I thought about Pete and Terry Peterson, who opened up Kennedy River Service early this summer. It's the only place to stop for gas or a cold drink between the Alberni Valley and the west coast.

ALL YEAR

They planned to operate year-round, they told me. I remembered the gallant way Terry shrugged and said "We've poured everything we've got in here, and we'll stick it out year round. It will make us or break us."

When the fire broke out Pete took a plane in to Port Alberni to get back and try and protect the coffee shop with its tidy living quarters and the gas pumps.

NO HYDRO

Despite the huge power lines outside their door, they had no hydro, just their own Delco plant. Dozens of feet of plastic hoses were on order to bring water from a year-round waterfall to the little business.

It takes a lot of good old-fashioned gumption to undertake a business under these circumstances. And just a shift in the wind will wipe it out.

By mid-afternoon the sky had cleared considerably, and the sun was back, promising another day of at least 80 degree heat.

There were few people on Spruce Lake, which is usually resounding to the roar of speedboats and the shrill screams of young swimmers on a day like this.

Some of the visitors were heading for home. Most of the permanent residents were watching and waiting.

Watching as company crumpled loaded with weary men made their way back into town, and fresh crews headed out to the fire. Watching as tank trucks and pump units rolled in from company divisions as far away as Kelsey Bay. Watching as a forestry helicopter whirled its way into sight and disappeared behind the pall of smoke.

LATE WIND

They watched and waited to see if the wind would change, fearing the customary late afternoon breeze that usually ruffles the lake and makes a pleasant interlude in the heat of the day.

And they watched and wondered just what you take along if the time comes when you have to leave your home behind.

Educators Speak At UVic

Two Island exponents of unorthodox education methods will join a student-sponsored seminar at the University of Victoria Saturday.

They are Joan Schwartz, teacher at Victoria's new Oraig-danoch School, and John Young, principal of Campbell River's senior high school.

Third member of the panel will be Marilyn Clayton, director of instructional research at Educational Services Inc. in Boston.

Students and the public will be welcome at the seminar, based on the theme Student-Oriented Education.

Garden Notes

Strawberry Time

By M. V. CHESNUT

To my mind, late August and early September is the best time of the year to plant up a new strawberry bed. By planting at this time, the plants have lots of time to get themselves thoroughly anchored in the soil and nicely established before growth ceases in late fall. And such plants may be permitted to carry a full crop next year, while spring-planted plants are supposed to be de-blossomed.

The first must for a good strawberry bed is a humus-rich soil. Hungarian gardeners, who are usually keen and expert growers of strawberries, dig in vast quantities of chopped straw; I have sometimes wondered if this is how the strawberry got its name. In our country, it is more usual to get our humus supply from well-rotted compost or manure and you'll need at least one good bucketful per square yard. Dig deeply, adding the organic matter as you work, and if the subsoil appears dry, flood the bottom of your digging trench with the hose as the work proceeds.

With this first digging completed, level the bed off roughly by raking, treading and raking again, then give the surface a top-dressing of damp peat moss and fertilizer, about half a bucketful of peat and one cupful of fertilizer per square yard.

Regarding the fertilizer, the strawberry-wise Hungarians use half a cupful of bone meal, half a cupful of dried blood and two cupfuls of wood ashes per square yard. Dried blood and wood ashes are not always easy to come by these days, so a pretty good substitute for the Hungarian formula is a 4-12-8 chemical fertilizer, or one roughly approximating these proportions. If the plot has recently been stripped of old turf or if wireworms are known to be troublesome, it is good insurance to add some diazinon granules to the dressing at the rate of two tablespoons per square yard.

With this mixture applied evenly over the surface of the new bed, dig it in shallowly, mixing it thoroughly into the top six inches.

Next the soil should be firmed. You can use the garden roller for this job, or put on your biggest and heaviest boots and do a Charlie Chaplin shuffle all over the bed, so that every inch receives the benefit of your weight. Follow this with one final raking, and you are ready to plant.

I prefer to allow three feet between rows and 18 inches between plants. If you happen to be a skinny runt, you could get by with only 2½ feet between rows, but I am a bit broad in the beam for working in such confined spaces. Use a trowel for planting, making a hole large enough for the roots to be spread out fully rather than bunching them straight down in a narrow hole. Trim off the tips of the longer roots with a pair of scissors and remove about half the leaves, retaining the central younger ones.

The strawberry is a bit fussy as to its depth of planting, and the crown should finish up just level with the soil surface. If you plant too deeply, covering the centre of the plant with soil crown rot will develop. If your planting is too shallow, the roots may dry out.

I don't know of any plant that responds in more dramatic fashion to Planter's Punch than the strawberry. This is my wife's name for a transplanting solution made with either Dixon's Vitamin B-1 or a proprietary preparation called "Transplantone". A good cupful is poured in each hole during the process of planting, compelling the filling-in with loose, dry soil on top.

Last time I planted strawberries, I did half a row with plain water instead of Planter's Punch just to see whether I had been fooling myself with this planting technique. In two weeks, the difference stuck out like a sore thumb, and even my neighbor Ernie, who poot-poots all my little tricks of the trade, had to admit the punch-treated plants had gotten away to a much better start. I think this is probably due to a root-stimulating hormone incorporated in the mixture.

ERMA BOMBECK Exists in Limbo

Marriage's Darkest Hour

Marriage counsellors say the first five years of a marriage are the most crucial. These are supposedly the years of mistrust, misgivings and mistakes you wouldn't believe.

I'm inclined to go along with a psychologist who puts the dark side of marriage somewhere between 15 and 20 years. They're the ones that make the first five years look like a honeymoon on Cleopatra's barge.

The earlier years of marriage are years of discovery. Every day is another "first." "Just think, Luvie, our first casserole in our first apartment. Our first burst of pen. Our first moky left-over. Our first trip to have our stomachs pumped."

They're polite years when good manners (a hold-over from the courtship) are still in effect. "Dearest, I love that mole on your chin. It makes you look so masculine." And he confesses, "when you giggle, dear heart, you sound like a little girl."

They're attention-getting years. For five years or so, people are either watching your stomach for signs of a baby, your face for signs of marital trouble, or your husband for signs of discontent.

From the 15th to the 20th year, things get a little dull. You know each other so well, you're beginning to look alike. You've heard all his funny stories and a few of the un-funny ones. Your life falls into a pattern.

Without being told you just know that while you and the kids are in a hot car waiting for Daddy, he's inside going through the medicine chest, the cupboard, and the utility room "tidying up."

He has an annoying habit of taking off his underwear and trousers together giving you the only laundry in town that is laminated.

Sentiment has been relegated to a dark corner of the attic and good manners have given way to honesty and frankness.

"That lousy mole has been on your face nearly 40 years," you growl. "You'd think by this time you'd quit shaving it and bleeding all over my good towels."

And he retorts, "You and that horse laugh! For a minute last night I thought you were going to lay an ostrich egg in the piano." As for attention, hardly any. From the 15th to the 20th year in a marriage is limbo time. Your children haven't left home yet; they're just never there.

You're too old for winks and whistles, too young for wisdom and respect. There's a sameness to your arguments and no one takes them seriously anymore.

You couldn't make your husband jealous if you ran away with the meter reader on Mother's Day. If you become pregnant, you'd only get sympathy cards and a questionnaire from the medical association.

Like I said to my husband yesterday, hoping to prod his memory into recalling our 18th anniversary, "Guess what day this is?" "Good lord!" he gasped, "I forgot to pay the rent." It's that kind of a year.

SHEILAH GRAHAM Reports

Slimming Craze Hits U.K.

LONDON (NANAY) — When Robert Ryan heard that Hayley Mills was going away to lose a stone, he commiserated with her, thinking she was entering a hospital for an operation. A stone in England is 14 pounds and Hayley, who is quite thin now, has an obsession about ever getting fat again. Weight-reducing places are mushrooming all over Britain where everyone is already skinny as all get out. The big bust is a bust and even Diana Dors has managed to look fairly flat-chested. Dresses in the fashionable shop windows are going down a bit. Some of them are downright long although you still see ultra-ultra mini-skirts on the streets. As dresses couldn't go any higher without reaching the waist, the logical fashion step was to make them longer.

Is marriage on the agenda for Joanna Pettet and Victor Lowmes who runs the Playboy Club in London? He has visited her in the U.S. where she is starring in Blue with Terence Stamp... John Huston tested his 15-year-old daughter Angelica for a part in his Sinfu Davey movie in Ireland and then decided it would be better for her to start her acting career with another director. From now on, John plans to make most of his films in Ireland where he lives in great splendor in a renovated castle which he picked up cheaply and poured a fortune into. As you know, he is now an Irish citizen.

Producer Ivan Foxwell puts the Evelyn Waugh classic, Decline and Fall, before the cameras Sept. 4. There are no big names in the picture. "Dick Zaneck (20th Century-Fox) agreed with me that we will cast the film with fine actors, not names," said Foxwell. "The story is the star." Some of the fine actors already signed — Sir Donald Wolfit, Leo McKern and Celia Blakeley of the National Theatre. "And someone quiet fascinating for the leading lady," I was assured.

Terrific trouble on the Barbarella set in Rome. The skirt, tight plastic costume for the women for the year 40,000 AD keep splitting. Well, at least the girls keep cool. The men are not as lucky. They wear leather body stockings, like from the feet to the chin. Jean-Claude Forest created Barbarella in 1962. It ran in a girls magazine for two years. Jane Fonda describes it as an "erotic comic strip." It's an allegorical commentary on sex, politics and society. It became a book, but you can only buy it under the counter in France. Following Barbarella, Jane and husband Roger Vadim fly off to Brittany to complete their segment of Edgar Allan Poe's Fantastic Stories. Brigitte Bardot did hers in Rome with Louis Malle directing. Orson Welles will star and of course, direct his section.

SYDNEY HARRIS Explains

'God Is Dead' Not Atheism

Several readers have asked me to explain a recent paragraph, in which I said that "to thank God" for having spared your family in a tornado, when families across the street have been blown up, is a blasphemy against the true God."

The God they give thanks to, in cases like these, is the one who has been proclaimed "dead." This is what the new theologians mean by the phrase.

They mean that being blown up, or not blown up, in a tornado, is a natural phenomenon, having nothing to do with God. He does not arbitrarily spare some and sentence others.

The phrase "God is dead," so widely misunderstood, is not a slogan of atheism; it is simply a different way of looking at the creative purpose behind the universe.

It is an attack on what the new theologians conceive as idolatry, superstition, and infantile fantasies. The God they proclaim "dead" was always a kind of Santa Claus, beard and all, rewarding the "good" people and punishing the "bad" ones.

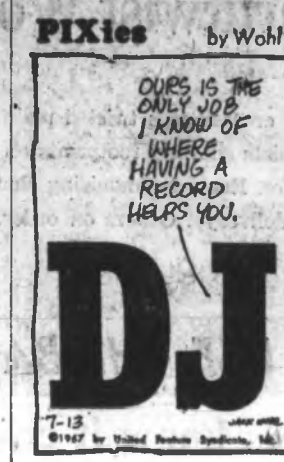

To thank God because we were spared in a catastrophe, while those around us perished, is indeed a kind of blasphemy. It assumes that God shoots dice with human lives, that He has decided to be particularly good to us, for reasons we are unaware of.

And this is the kind of God that many modern people have refused to believe in — a capricious deity, dispensing favors and punishments, protecting "our" soldiers in a war, and giving us prosperity and contentment if we obey His rules and regulations. And belief in that kind of "religious" people for centuries to ignore their social and moral obligations, to think of religion as totally irrelevant to contemporary problems, to imagine that following dogmas and rituals assures them a place in Heaven or at least a partial remission for their sins.

The new theologians stress that God is the one who gives us freedom, gives us love, gives us reason, gives us moral choice, and gives us personhood. Whether we accept these or not, is up to us.

Around TownCare Crisis Shaping Up?

A suit against the city by a private hospital operator could put the provincial government on the spot and bring the chronic-care crisis to a head, Acting Mayor Robert Baird said Thursday.

William Osland, administrator of Glenagarry and Glenwarren private hospitals, said earlier he was thinking of taking the city to court to recover unpaid portions of his bills for welfare patients.

Senior officials at City Hall had other comments.

"Things are going through channels and the provincial government is fully informed of our dissatisfaction in this manner," said one official. "I am not sure at all that this is the time for challenges."

This is the worst summer in 14 years for cat-dumpers, says a spokesman for the Cats' Protection League. "They unload them on us every day," adds Mrs. I. D. Woods. "And when they leave them with us, they demand that we don't put them to sleep."

The accommodation strain put on Greater Victoria increased tourist flow has been eased by people volunteering rooms in private homes. More than 100 home-owners have listed with the Victoria Visitors' Bureau, allowing 300 tourists to find lodging Wednesday night.

Lack of ceramic tile has caused a four-week holdup in centennial pool being built on Island Highway near Colwood. Opening ceremonies, scheduled for Sept. 2, have been postponed tentatively to Oct. 7, according to pool committee chairman John Williams.

International visitors to Canadian amateur golf championships at Colwood are being greeted by a "terrible smell," Colwood's regional board representative, William Reader, says. "The smell, caused by sewage from Colwood Plaza, hangs across the road and onto the course, and it's a disgrace," he said.

Tenders nearly $30,000 below estimated cost, for additions to Saverly elementary school, were opened in Sooke School Board offices. Lowest tender on the building, originally estimated at $30,000, was $61,789 bid by E. J. Hunter and Sons.

Janet Darlene Smith, 3, of 2639 Blenheim, is in fair condition in Royal Jubilee with a fractured skull. She ran into the path of a car driven by William Miskimen, 41, of 1323 Fort, at Blenheim and Kings Thursday.

A man named Crust collided with a bread truck on Hillside near Blackwood Thursday. Police said the large tractor-trailer unit, driven by Victor Flint, 3577 Elliston, was swinging to make a turn down the lane to McGavin's Toastmaster's bakery when the tractor was hit by a car driven by Margaret R. Crust, 3477 Cordell Place. No one was injured but damage was extensive.

Carter Report Blasted

The Carter taxation report would result in "a socialist accountant's heaven and a free enterprise economist's hell," says Public Works Minister Chant.

Another product of the federal royal commission report, according to Mr. Chant: "A monolithic government riding on the backs of a multitude of tax-paying slaves and in some instances government distribution of largesse in selected areas."

OUTLINES STAND

The works minister, a Social Credit member from the Abernethy days, outlined his stand on the Carter recommendations in a letter to the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber, which also hammered the Carter conclusions, pulled Mr. Chant and other members of the legislature.

For Trumpet Echo

Who was the sea-going trumpeter? Is the burning question in the office of city archivist Ainslie Helmcken.

It seems that between the years 1904 and 1910, each time one of the Princess passenger ships pulled away from the Inner Harbor wharf, a trumpet player appeared on the lower deck and played a song of farewell.

"On a clear summer evening, it was beautiful," says Mr. Helmcken.

Question: Who was the trumpeter and what was the name of the selection he played?

He was a New Zealander by birth, Mr. Helmcken believes, and for many years his solo was a feature of every departure.

Reason for the query is that the archivist is putting together a history of the B.C. Coastal ferries and this, along with any other relevant information and pictures would be a help in preparing both the history and a photographic showcase display for City Hall rotunda.

First with Man-Power'Nephew Used Pedals For Unique Flight'

By NANCY BROWN

A Victoria woman was the owner of the bicycle pedals used for the first man-powered flight in England in 1962.

Mrs. Hilda Duff, 200 Douglas, said Thursday that her nephew made the first flight over a distance of half-a-mile, with a machine he built himself.

"He used the pedals from my old bicycle," she said, "and he won $150 from the Royal Aeronautical Society for the first man-powered flight."

The prize for a flight of one mile in a figure eight remains unclaimed, although an Esquimalt man is working on a flying machine.

According to Mrs. Duff, her nephew, John Wimpey, who at the time of his flight was deputy chief of aerodynamics at de Havilland, took two years to build the plane, which weighed 115 pounds and had a wingspan of 84 feet.

"The plane was called the Puffin, but it was finally burned in an accidental fire," said Mrs. Duff.

Since then, her nephew has not had time to work on a new version.

In Victoria, Paul Morovecu, 1336 Lyall Street, is rebuilding the fuselage of his 135-pound steel pipe and canvas plane, which has a 40-foot wingspan.

He is carrying out final alterations in preparation for a trial flight.

TOP SOIL

By far the cheapest and best lasting fertilizing material for your lawn and shrubs. If applied as top dressing (one yard for every 500 sq. ft.) it will with proper care after three yearly applications develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. That is how good and lasting lawns used to be made. Top dressed lawns moreover are far less vulnerable to weeds and moss; also they require less watering.

Area Officials Certain Firebugs on Rampage

Fire departments in Greater Victoria are convinced there are firebugs operating in the area.

Police have urged anyone seeing suspicious persons in the vicinity of any fire to note a description or licence number, or preferably both, and give them to the nearest policeman or fireman.

Latest indication that fires were being set was a series of blazes, that brought out the city fire department Thursday.

Street. A few minutes later there was a second call to the 1000-block North Park, then a third, to the 800-block North Park.

The three alarms came in within half an hour. "They were too close. We believe they were set," said Deputy Chief Carl Coates.

SIMILAR RUN

Saanich had a similar situation Tuesday, when five alarms to separate fires were turned in within 20 minutes. Last Friday three fires on Mount Douglas were reported within five minutes of one another.

Earlier, Langford and Colwood volunteer fire department chiefs Allan LeQuenne and Richard Proudfoot speculated that a firebug had been setting a series of fires in their areas.

Red Power Answer

Indians Tired Of Promises

VANCOUVER (CP)—Doctor Howard Adams, self-described spokesman for "Red Power," said Wednesday the native Canadian Indians does not have time to wait for the next election and more promises of legislation. Dr. Adams, himself a full-blooded Indian and professor of community development at the University of Saskatchewan, said in an interview here that Indians are demanding more opportunities for employment and their constitutional rights. "We are talking about power and there is no talking about it," he said. "If Red Power means political power in the hands of the Indian, the movement is well under way in Saskatchewan." He said the Indians are not given to violence "but no longer are we apathetic. We are organized from the grassroots and militant. The movement can't be held off. People are already talking in terms of demonstrations. There are forces in the establishment who would break us up. Let them know what we are planning and they would try to buy off our leaders or give us a little more relief. We want to have a say in the making of policies which affect us. We also want to get rid of the text books that make us out to be savages or anthropological curiosities." The Saskatchewan Indian is becoming more militant than the B.C. Indian because he has been more suppressed, he said. "We have lost our religion and we have lost our language. We want to know what culture we have left before any push is made for integration. And we don't want the white man telling us what our culture is."

Drink to Canada's Golfing Heroes

Calgary Sets 'Em Up!

By JIM TANG
Sports Editor

It'll be understandable if they cancel the bar bills at the Calgary Golf and Country Club.

If it isn't that, then it will be something else. Something, certainly, will be done to celebrate or commemorate the performance of three club members in the Canadian amateur golf championship at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club.

Stories and pictures on Page 12.

Playing in a field termed by Louis Du Plessis, manager of South Africa's Commonwealth team, as "the finest in the history of amateur golf," Keith Alexander, Bob Wylie and Doug Silverberg have managed what well could be an unprecedented accomplishment for members of one club.

CANADA'S HOPE

Not only did the three members of Alberta's Willingdon Cup team all qualify and safely make it through the first round of match play, but when play starts in the quarter-finals this morning, there will be only Alexander and Wylie representing the host nation.

And Silverberg might have made it three Canadians among the eight survivors but for the fact that he was drawn against Wylie in the 16s yesterday afternoon.

Alexander, who eliminated Geoff Clare of New Zealand on Wednesday, ousted two more Commonwealth golfers yesterday.

Today, Alexander meets Russ Murray, the husky New Zealander who defeated him, 1 up, in the Commonwealth Matches. Wylie, who started off with a 1 up victory over Edmonton's Bob Bradburn on Monday, yesterday took Tom Hunter of Vancouver.

Woman Dies In Accident

NANAIMO — An unidentified woman was killed when her light truck left the highway eight miles north of Nanaimo late Thursday night.

The lone occupant of the truck narrowly missed a telephone pole and guy wire, driving between them and smashing into an arbutus tree. She was crushed by the wheel.

Help to Negroes Denied by U.S.

OTTAWA (UPI) — A Canadian senator Thursday accused the United States Congress of "virtually halting action on all measures" designed to help the American Negro achieve equality.

Senator Hazen Argue described the U.S. governing body as a combination of right-wing Republicans and Southern Democrats who don't really understand the problem of the Negro and are indifferent to his needs.

MORE TROUBLE

Argue, who recently returned from a private fact-finding tour through U.S. racial hot-spots in Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi, said he can see "nothing but more and more trouble ahead" in the United States.

The 46-year-old senator from Kayville, Sask., said he made the tour as a holiday trip and for a "first-hand look at the conditions of the American Negro."

"I was appalled by what I saw," Argue said.

ROTTING DWELLINGS

He said Negro housing in major cities — Atlanta, Montgomery and Jackson — "is a collection of ancient, rotting dwellings infested with rats and cockroaches."

"Families are jammed into two or three rooms, streets are full of litter and some districts are hangouts for dope addicts, alcoholics and prostitutes," he said.

The Canadian senator said that under present circumstances the prospects "indicate more violence, more riots and more destruction in the days ahead."

Gun-Toting Barbers Work Under Stars

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Police here are looking for two amateur barbers.

Royden Chrysler, 18, of Moose Jaw, said he was walking near a city park shortly after midnight Thursday when a white conspire stopped beside him and two men jumped out.

One held a gun, the other a pair of scissors.

They ordered him to stand still while they cut off his long, flowing hair.

The young man said he had never seen his assailants before.

Colleague Attacks De Gaulle Stand

PARIS (Reuters) — The leader of the right wing among President de Gaulle's supporters in Parliament attacked de Gaulle Thursday for his controversial support for French-speaking Canadians.

Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, whose Independent Republican party provides 44 seats toward the Gaullists' thin majority in the National Assembly, also issued a strongly worded appeal to de Gaulle to reform his methods of government.

CONTRARY ACT

He said in a statement that de Gaulle's support in Quebec for the French-speaking Canadians was "contrary to one of the principles on which Gen. de Gaulle founded the recovery of France's prestige and influence."

He said there were not "two categories of Frenchmen—the good ones and the bad ones"—and there should be democratic debate both in the Gaullist ranks and the Opposition.

Island's East Coast Woods Closed

'Scared We Might Lose Park'

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Tinder-dry forests on Vancouver Island have forced a general woods closure on the east coast with the almost unprecedented added precaution of a ban on all campfires in provincial parks.

A spokesman for the provincial parks branch said Thursday: "We are just scared to death that we might lose a park."

Officials said all-night patrols have been on duty in parks for several days watching for campfires which might cause a larger conflagration.

The campfire ban has been in effect outside of parks and other approved camp and picnic spots for some time, but the increasing hazard coupled with the fact that "99.9 per cent" of campers use gasoline stoves for cooking prompted the additional precaution, the spokesman said.

Parks branch officials said on only one other occasion

Giant Island Fire Rages On

Work Together! Agencies Told

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

A B.C. Hydro official has blamed the Forest Service and the Highways Department for the start of a giant forest fire between Alberni and Tofino.

"Why did the Forest Service allow the Highways Department to undertake blasting on that road, when the forests were so dry?" asked A. D. McGillivray, regional manager of Hydro.

"They wouldn't let our crews in because it was too dry, but they let them blast on that road. It just doesn't make sense!"

The fire now covers 10 square miles, and is being fought by 500 men, including loggers and residents.

The fire was started when a blasting operation on the highway brought down a power line at Taylor Arm, igniting the forest.

In late developments: The bridge burned out at Taylor River was not replaced Thursday, and an emergency bridge will be put in today. But it cannot be used by travellers, only by firefighters.

Three truckloads of fish are rotting on the dock at Tofino, because a power outage killed the ice supply.

Striking Seamen, Shipping Firms Break Off Talks

MONTREAL (CP)—Bargainers for Canada's inland sailors and 32 shipping companies broke off talks late Thursday after trying vainly to bring a quick end to a strike that started at noon.

Leonard McLaughlin, president of 5,400-member Seafarers' International Union, described the walkout as "a situation on fire" and said the union is determined to satisfy four basic demands—the main one being a 40-hour work week.

By 5 p.m. at least 35 of the 181 ships involved had been tied up in the ports from the Lakehead to Quebec, as their crews walked off the vessels.

Shortly after the strike deadline passed complaints poured into union headquarters here from shipping operators that some ships were abandoned and some cargoes left unloaded.

"It's all malarkey," said John Royce, strike director for the seafarers, when asked about company charges.

'All Safely Berthed'

"We have been assured by our port agents that our men have not left any ships until they are safely berthed at the docks."

However, longshoremen in most ports were refusing to unload struck ships and the SIU had had several requests from shipowners to extend the strike deadline while unloading proceeded.

One such request—from the Canadian government—was complied with and SIU members were ordered to sail the tankers Edward Simard and the Joseph Simard from northern ports carrying vital supplies for department of national defence bases.

Maritime trustee Judge Rene Lippe and Jean-Pierre Despres, assistant deputy minister of labor, spent much of Thursday morning clarifying issues with the negotiating teams.

"This is the first really serious bargaining session these people have had," Judge Lippe said during the lunch break.

But soft-spoken Ben Truax, chief negotiator for the shipping companies, said the two sides were still far apart.

Mr. McLaughlin said that neither side had budged on "the four basic demands we are determined to satisfy."

Storks Vs. Eagles

Sky Dark with Fighting Birds

By NUYAN YIGIT

ISTANBUL, Turkey (Reuters) — Eyewitness Thursday confirmed accounts of deadly battles between storks and eagles.

A Reuters report of a two-day fight near Tarsus this month, which left 50 dead birds on the ground aroused controversy among British ornithologists.

But two Turkish zoology professors and Istanbul's Hunters' Club confirm that the air war is very real.

Hussein Karagol, 62-year-old physics teacher of Erzurum, Eastern Turkey, described how the birds fight in battle formation.

"The eagles and storks fight in thousands," he said.

"I was in a valley of the Shakhak Mountains near Erzurum in 1921 when I saw such a battle."

"The storks' tactic was to gain altitude—not vertically but gradually winging higher. The eagles flying in a horizontal line attacked them as they rose. But those which were not wounded or killed flew above the eagles and selected their individual enemy targets."

"Extending their beaks, drawing back their feet and fanning their wings, they dived exactly like an arrow. When a stork's beak strikes the head of an eagle, there is not the slightest chance of the eagle's surviving."

"Sometimes the stork cannot pull its beak out again and both fall and die together."

"During the battle the sky is dark with fighting birds. Blood covers the ground and the air rings with the cries of eagles and the blows of the storks' beaks."

Professors Saadet Bayramoglu and Asif Sengun of Istanbul University confirmed the battles of the birds which usually takes place when the storks are migrating for the winter.

Deadly Divebombers

Situation On Fire

They were a request for the 40-hour week, paid holidays, a new manning scale and changes in a work-spread system that keeps sailors on call over 24-hour periods.

The red-haired union leader said the 98 per cent pro-strike vote registered by his members earlier this week made it clear the men would not return to work without winning these demands.

"It's a situation on fire," he said. "We can't settle without winning these four points. What good would it do if the men wouldn't go back to work?"

William Dunkerley, labor relations manager for Canada Steamship Lines Ltd. and a member of the Canadian Lake Carriers Association's negotiating committee, told a press conference that, despite the SIU's assurance that all ships would be brought to safe ports, ships were being "left in distress."

Asked to clarify what he meant by distress, Mr. Dunkerley said in one case a ship had been abandoned in a tidal basin at Quebec City. It should have gone in, unloaded and come out on the tide.

"But its crew has abandoned it and when the tide goes out she'll be lying on the bottom. Wouldn't you call that distress?"

Association President J. W. McGiffin issued a statement at the press conference in which he claimed that the strike could

Little Bigger Than Bag

If golfers and spectators thought it was hot trudging around Royal Colwood Golf course yesterday, they could give a thought about caddy Neal Ellison. Little bigger and perhaps not as heavy as the bag of clubs he toiled, Neal, 14, went 34 holes with Lane Bennett as the Pebble Beach shotsmith polished off two opponents to gain a spot in the eighth of the Canadian Amateur championships. — (Jim Ryan)

Willingdon Copper Tops British Champ

By BRIAN DOHERTY

John Sale, a 20-year-old American, bumped two-time British amateur champion Michael Bonallack out of the Canadian amateur golf championship at the Colwood Golf Club Thursday.

Sale won, 2 and 1, against a Bonallack who has never managed to tame his putter since he has been in Canada.

Sale was two up after nine holes, lost 14 when he knocked his drive out of bounds, but came back to take 16 with a par when Bonallack hit his drive into the rough and finished with a bogey.

AFFILIATED WITH RCGA
Sale is listed among the entries as being a member of the St. Croix club Milltown, New Brunswick. He played in the combined New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island Willingdon Cup team.

But the St. Croix club is in Calais, Maine, and Sale lives in Calais, Maine, and Sale lives in at the University of Florida where he is on a golf scholarship.

The St. Croix club is on the U.S.-Canada border and half its members are Canadians. Consequently, the club is affiliated to the U.S. Golf Association and the Royal Canadian Golf Association as a member of the New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island Golf Association.

Sale, a long hitter, shot a two-under 68 in the morning as he beat Art Donaldson, 2 and 1.

HOLDS TWO TITLES

It is the first time in the Canadian amateur of Sale, who is the current Maine and New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island amateur champion.

Calgary's Keith Alexander found a hot putter to put South African Dave Symons out in the third round, 2 and 1.

Alexander began poorly when he hit two bad shots on the first hole but he sank his chip to win the hole with a birdie.

Neither was very accurate with tee shots — Alexander looked tired — but Symons won 15 to be one down. Then the scrambling and putting began for Alexander.

He sank a 25-foot par putt to halve the 16th and canned a 33-footer on 17 to win, 2 and 1.

KENT OUSTED

Ricky Kent of Victoria left the field in the second round when he was beaten by Doug Silverberg of Calgary, one up.

Kent, who eliminated Wayne Volmer Wednesday, was two up after nine and lost 12 to a par. He lost 14 to a birdie and went one down when the burly Silverberg birdied 15.

Kent squared it at 16 with a par but ran into trouble on 17th. He had a longer drive than Silverberg but the ball finished in the slick rough.

Silverberg put his second on the green but Kent didn't get the ball cleanly and dropped it in the bunker. He took two to get out and lost the hole.

They halved the 18th with pars.

WYLIE STILL IN
Silverberg met Bob Wylie, also of Calgary, on the afternoon round. Wylie won, 2 and 1, after being three up on the 13th tee.

Australian Billy Britten was eliminated in the morning round by New Zealander Ross Murray, who won, 2 and 1.

Murray played Ben Kern, the 20-year-old Ontario Willingdon Cup representative, in the afternoon and won, two up.

WANTS SCHOLARSHIP
One of the smoother swingers of the day was 18-year-old Lane Bennett from Pebble Beach.

Bennett is a student at Brigham Young University and is hoping to play good enough golf this summer to earn a golf scholarship.

Bennett made the final eight by beating Steve Ryan of Seattle, 2 up.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS:
Bennett shot a four-under 66, equalling the course record, as he knocked Richard Price from Longview, Wash., out of the second round. Price shot 68.

New Zealander Boris Vesich had an eagle three on the 320-yard par five fifth. Vesich was playing fellow-countryman Stu Jones and lost one-up.

Malaysian Arthur Balasch celebrated his 21st birthday by beating Camille Du Toit of South Africa, two up, to make the final eight.

Balasch said he is now hitting the ball better than he has since he has been in Canada. Nick Mickelski lost the first two holes to Symons when he found he had an extra club in his bag.

It was the six iron belonging to Stu Jones, who was looking around the first tee for his lost club. Mickelski lost to Symons, 4 and 3, but he had already lost the first hole to a

Ross Murray changed his mind on a birdie putt against him in the morning round. He took his caddy's reading of the green on 17 and sunk the putt to beat Britten. Nobody knows too much about Dick Rankle of Los Angeles except that he keeps beating Par and keeps winning.

Alexander has had an all-Commonwealth time in the amateur, beating Geoff Clarke and Bruce Stevens of New Zealand and South African Symons. Today he plays Murray.

goal attempts by Montreal Alouettes Thursday night to mark up a slim 17-16 Eastern Football Conference victory.

Both the Alouettes and the Ticats were gunning for their first win of the young season. It was the second game this year.

TICATS OUTPLAYED
Outplayed most of the way by a surprisingly strong Montreal defensive squad, the Ticats grabbed their victory with a brilliant 92-yard pass-and-run play in the third quarter.

The play brought Hamilton to the one-yard line from where Dick Cohee carried over for a touchdown.

Tommy Joe Coffey scored for one touchdown and booted a field goal and two conversions for Hamilton's other points.

Deciding game in the series will be played tonight at 6:30 at Elbowwood Avenue Park.

Here is the Thursday night—

Fire Story

Power for the troubled communities of Tofino and Ucluelet was restored at 6 p.m. Thursday, after about 30 hours of outage. A store manager demanded a better Auxiliary plant, commenting: "Even if it's a white elephant for two years, it would pay for itself in 30 hours."

Mr. Lady Rose finished its Bamfield run and went immediately to Ucluelet, to pick up stunted loads of tourists and fish, and run them to the Albernis.

"This will kill the summer in Tofino," said one merchant. "We won't make a nickle here now. We are in dire straits. The fish packers are in real trouble."

A Forest Service spokesman said the fire is crowning, moving through the tree tops. "It ran up the hills and there was just no stopping it."

Power from the small auxiliary unit was being switched at six-hour intervals back and forth between Tofino and Ucluelet, to give deep-freeze material a fighting chance to survive the power shortage.

Secondary fire lanes were constructed by firefighters, and a spokesman said these would eliminate some danger of the fire spreading if a wind comes up.

Tofino businessman Nick Seymour said "Mr. Gagliardi should sell his Goddam Lear jet and use the money to buy us a better power plant." But MLA Howard McDiarmid said this would not be economical.

The big fire was just one of 300 fires being battled in British Columbia. Woods closure came into effect. The fire was described as "exploding" through the woods.

J. T. Walter, owner of a Tofino store, said the village has been without power "28 times" since last fall. A B.C. Hydro spokesman pointed out this would include the winter, when snow knocks out the lines.

'Forest Threat Is Explosive'

DUNCAN — Shortly before the complete forest closure on the east coast of the island, a logging official expressed dismay that recreational use of the woods had been continued so long in dry forests.

Mr. Loukes, logging manager of MacMillan Bloedel, told Duncan Chamber directors "the public is more than ever aware of the explosive fire danger."

"The B.C. Forest Service gives a lot of credit to companies for their voluntary closure of the woods under their control."

Mr. Loukes stressed the latest reading showed a record low humidity.

There will be no major change according to the forecast and forest officials are hopful the public will be extremely careful when entering the woods.

Chamber secretary Arthur Stevenson bore out Mr. Loukes' earlier statement and told the directors that tourists coming to the chamber information bureau show their awareness of the danger and are very concerned.

The number of tourists calling at the information centre during the first two weeks of August reached 885, an increase of 114 callers over last year during the same period.

Acting chairman Sam Keeble said his committee recently decided to keep the tourist information centre open until 9 p.m. from Mondays until Fridays and on Saturdays until 5 p.m.

PORT ALBERNI—What do you take with you, when you must suddenly flee your home in the path of a forest fire?

That problem faced anxious residents in the Sproat Lake area, as the Tofino Road forest fire swept through 3,000 acres.

For the first time in many days families rose to find no sun shining. As they rubbed sleep from their eyes, residents thought the weather had changed and clouds had rolled in.

Then they realized it was not cloud that covered the sky, it was smoke!

They looked in vain for mountain landmarks that are seen most summer mornings. There was nothing beyond the trees but a grey, smoke-filled emptiness.

ASH RAIN

Aproat Lake residents watched grimly as ash and soot from the fire powdered trees and buildings. Most were women and youngsters.

The men were either at work at their regular jobs or busy helping fight the blaze.

The women visited among themselves, pondering what they should do if the call came to evacuate their homes, loathe to get too far from the radio which might give them some news of the fire's progress.

TAKE PETS

What do you take when you are told to evacuate your home? Worse, what do you leave behind?

I talked to a couple of friends living within a mile of the turn-off to the Tofino Highway. What should they try to take?

"The kids, the dog and the cat!"

MASS DOWN

Residents at the lake listened to the Mass water bomber warm up, only to learn it could not take off into the smoke.

The fire is in an area where flying a plane is a tricky job even when you can see where you're going. It's rugged, mountain country.

I thought about Pete and Terry Peterson, who opened up Kennedy River Service early this summer. It's the only place to stop for gas or a cold drink between the Alberni Valley and the west coast.

ALL YEAR

They planned to operate year-round, they told me. I remembered the gallant way Terry shrugged and said "We've poured everything we've got in here, and we'll stick it out year round. It will make us or break us."

When the fire broke out Pete took a plane in to Port Alberni to get back and try and protect the coffee shop with its tidy living quarters and the gas pumps.

NO HYDRO

Despite the huge power lines outside their door, they had no hydro, just their own Delco plant. Dozens of feet of plastic hose were on order to bring water from a year-round waterfall to the little business.

It takes a lot of good old-fashioned gumption to undertake a business under those circumstances. And just a shift in the wind will wipe it out.

By mid-afternoon the sky had cleared considerably, and the sun was back, promising another day of at least 80 degree heat.

There were few people on Sproat Lake, which is usually resounding to the roar of speedboats and the shrill screams of young swimmers on a day like this.

MEN WEARY

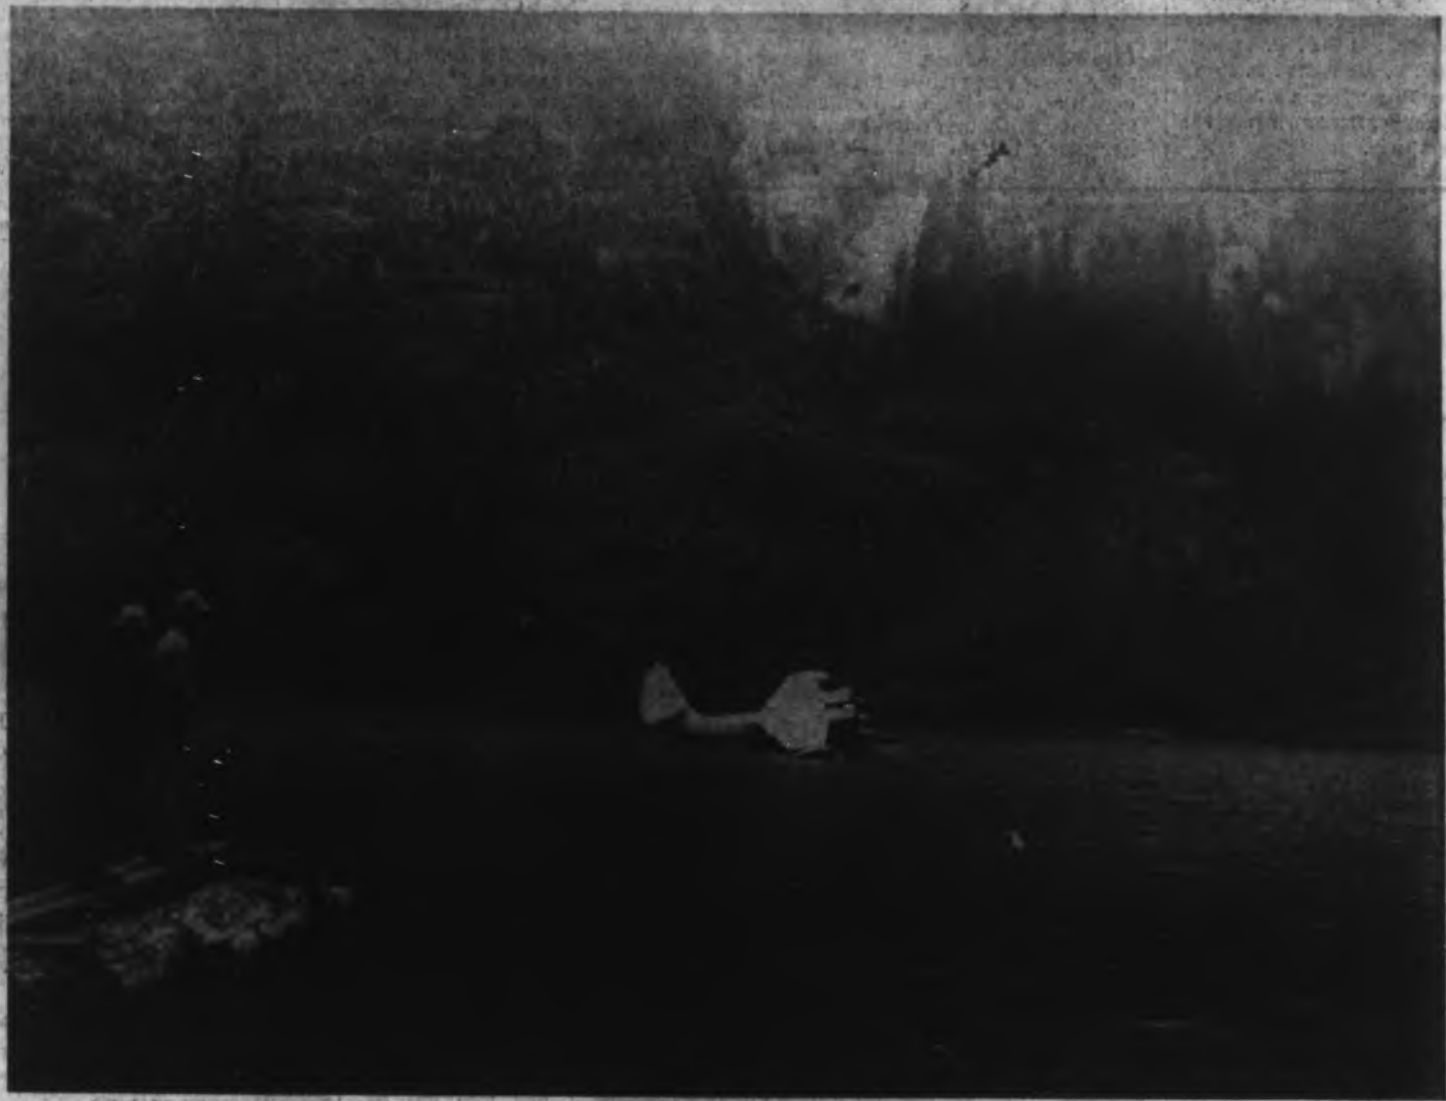

Some of the visitors were heading for home. Most of the permanent residents were watching and waiting.

Watching as company crumblers loaded with weary men made their way back into town, and fresh crews headed out to the fire. Watching as tank trucks and pump units rolled in from company divisions as far away as Kelsey Bay. Watching as a forestry helicopter whirled its way into sight and disappeared behind the pall of smoke.

LATE WIND

They watched and waited to see if the wind would change, fearing the customary late afternoon breeze that usually ruffles the lake and makes a pleasant interlude in the heat of the day.

And they watched and wondered just what you take along if the time comes when you have to leave your home behind.

'Only Rain Can Help'

By JEAN MacGREGOR

DUNCAN — A member of the ranger staff at Duncan said Thursday forest hazard conditions in the Cowichan Valley are the worst he has ever seen.

He said "The temperature was 70 degrees 8 a.m. Thursday at the Mount Prevost lookout station, and Wednesday afternoon's temperature was 82 degrees on the mountain."

Lowest humidity readings for years were registered at Hill 60 between Duncan and Lake Cowichan.

The humidity (moisture content in the air) went down to 15 per cent at 4:00 a.m. Thursday.

The ranger said "This is the lowest humidity reading I can remember for this area."

On Mount Prevost Wednesday night the humidity was 37 per cent and at noon Thursday at Hill 60 the reading had risen to 20 per cent from 15 in the early morning.

The sticks which also measure moisture content read at 57 Wednesday on Mount Prevost, seven at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, 6.5 on Hill 60, and a record low of 4.5 Wednesday on Mount Bruce, located on Salt Spring Island.

The ranger stated "We will have to have at least one inch of rain before slash burning can be started."

In Lake Cowichan, assistant forest ranger Bill Davis reported a record high of 96 degrees at Lake Cowichan Wednesday.

He said the humidity was 28 per cent at Lake Cowichan Thursday, and 25 per cent at Gordon River, west of Lake Cowichan.

The stick readings at the lake were 6.2 and down to five at Gordon River.

"Nothing but rain can help the forest situation now."

CKAY radio station has been silenced during the last two days, a victim of the hot summer.

News director Ken McEwan said "excessive heat caused by the combination of electronic equipment and the sun resulted in a minor fire and the burning of essential components at the CKAY transmitter site at Fairbridge, early Wednesday morning."

Highway Route Planned

PORT ALBERNI — When the fire dies, the big job of road-building will go on.

For the past two years, the Highways Department has been working on reconstruction of the Alberni-Tofino Highway.

It was one of the blasts in that job that started the giant fire now running out of control.

LAKE EDGE

Result of the big job will be a new route for the highway, along the edge of Sproat Lake.

MLA Howard McDiarmid said "the switchbacks will be eliminated."

ROCK WILL GO

He said Paul Zapf, head of the locations branch for the Highway Department, told him studies of the amount of rock to be removed, have been completed.

"There is nothing prohibitive about the job, and it has been definitely decided that when the road is brought up to expectations, it will go along the edge of the lake."

TROUBLE CUT

Dr. McDiarmid said recent surveys show the proposed route, which would eliminate the most troublesome part of the road, is definitely feasible.

After New Rules

Water Consumption Again Reasonable

Water consumption throughout Greater Victoria appeared to have returned to a reasonable level Wednesday, the first day a moderate watering regulation went into effect.

Water Commissioner Ronald Upward said that although the figures would not be known until this morning, it was likely that some 20,000,000 to 22,000,000 gallons were used during the day.

Water consumption fell off to a mere 13,500,000 gallons Tuesday, a significant improvement from Monday's heavy consumption of 24,500,000 gallons.

Monday was the first day sprinkling was allowed after the institution of a conservation regulation which imposed a six-days-a-week ban on the district. On Monday the use of lawn sprinklers was allowed in Saanich and Oak Bay north of Lansdowne. Consumers in those areas went on a water binge and boosted their average daily consumption from 100 to 400 gallons per person.

New regulations, announced Wednesday, allow all users to sprinkle three days a week within certain hours.

It was also learned Wednesday from federal fisheries officials the salmon fry in the Goldstream are alive and will probably survive despite a reduction in the volume of water flowing through the creek.

The minimal additional flow allowed into the stream from the water district resources has enabled tens of thousands of coho fry to live and the principal threat to their existence now is an increase in the temperature of the water.

If the water in the stream stays at its present 65 degrees or less, all will be well, but if it rises much above that level, fisheries people will begin to worry.

They're Happy

Mr. Upward said Wednesday it is unlikely that the present flow into the stream will be further reduced.

"I am happy that the fish have survived, and the fisheries people are happy. We have worked closely with them throughout," he said.

Fisheries officials reciprocated the good feeling between the departments. They said they had had every co-operation from the water district.

However, the fisheries authorities do have a provisional plan in mind in the event it is necessary to reduce further the trickle of water now in the stream.

Pump Possible

M. P. Houghton, chief of the conservation and protection branch, located in Vancouver, said it might be possible to pump water from Langford Lake into the stream.

It would mean laying lines from two to three miles, and there would again be the matter of temperature.

The problem of salmon fry survival was not unique here, said Mr. Houghton. Streams all over lower Vancouver Island were drying up with a consequent loss of fish.

Stars of Future Net Result Of Tennis Classes

The Greater Victoria public parks junior tennis tournament finished Wednesday at Beacon Hill Park, with final matches in upper divisions.

Gordon Harley, who served as tennis instructor for the four municipalities during the first combined tournament ever held here, said he considered the tournament an "outstanding success."

"I think three or four of the boys and girls are going to go on to be really good," he said.

Winners of the day's final playoffs: Heather Graham defeated Val Scott 6-3, 6-1, in the girls' 13-year-old division; John Craveiro edged out Wolfgang Lechmum 6-4, 6-4, in the boys' 13-year-old group.

Ted Davies handily beat Dimes Craveiro 6-0, 6-4, in the boys' 15-year-old final; Lois Pepper beat Marlene Kreller 5-7, 6-1, 6-2, in the girls' 14 to 17-year-old group, and Pete Mason defeated Dave Gerry 6-1, 7-5, in the senior boys' 15 to 17-year-old group.

Special sportsmanship awards were presented to Charles Cornfield and Pierette La Vertu; and free memberships were given by the Oak Bay Tennis Club to Dave Blackie and Dimes Craveiro and by the Racquets Club to Peggy Hartnell, Dave Mulcahy and Marlene Kreller.

Radiology Ward Expands

St. Joseph's hospital said Wednesday it will call tenders immediately for about $100,000 worth of renovations to its X-ray department.

The plans, first disclosed last fall, also involve purchase of about $200,000 worth of new X-ray equipment. Renovations to the building probably will start before the end of the year.

Sewers Approved In North Saanich

North Saanich council has given preliminary approval to the municipality's first sewers — a system that would serve about 3,000 people mainly in Dean Park Estates.

The system, which would cost between $60,000 and $70,000, would serve an area bounded by the experimental farm, Patricia Bay Highway and Sidney to the north.

Plans call for the outfall to extend at least 2,000 feet into the water. The proposal still has to be sanctioned by the British Columbia Pollution Control Board, however.

"Other matters will also have to be resolved, such as financing and legal technicalities, before we can go ahead with the project," said North Saanich Reeve J. B. Cumming.

Roblin's Bandwagon Hits Town Tuesday

Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba, a contender for the Progressive Conservative national leadership, will bring his campaign to Victoria on Tuesday.

The 50-year-old premier is scheduled to arrive at the Empress Hotel at 2 p.m.

School Desks Ashes

Fire demolished a small shed containing desks at Resthaven School in Sidney, Wednesday, while Sidney volunteer firemen used most of their equipment to keep the adjoining school from going up.

Firemen were at the scene on Bowerbank Road from 3:30 p.m. until nearly 5 p.m.

The fierce blaze and dry conditions came within inches of wiping out the Seventh Day Adventist School.

SEVERAL THEORIES

Fire Chief Hugh Loney was still investigating the cause of the blaze Wednesday evening. "It could have been children playing with matches, or a cigarette, or even the excessive heat," he said.

Star Will Go East

As special souvenir Mark Miatello, 14, and Brad Cassan, 15, both of Port Colborne, Ont., will take home starfish they collected during their week-long Rotary Club sponsored tour to the west coast. They are two of six boys who spent most of their time boating, fishing and sightseeing at Duncan and Victoria. The two boys stayed at homes of Duncan Rotarians. Above, they show hostess their fish. Mark and Brad were guests of Mayor and Mrs. Jack Dobson, Ypres Street.

Duncan Set for Rainfall But Rain Doesn't Come

DUNCAN — This city is well prepared for another rainy season ... if, as one city council member puts it, "it ever rains again!"

The city's inner dike now measures 24 feet at the base and 18 feet at the crown, which will allow trucks to travel on the dike.

He said in case of another heavy rain and flood threat, a bulldozer could push more material along the dike to give even greater protection.

Ald. Martin Lukatsis complained about the lack of interest shown by local merchants in Canada's centennial.

"If you walk through the city nothing can be seen indicating the centennial year."

"I think businessmen are a bit cheap even the biggest business in town does not fly a centennial flag."

Ald. Tom Kilpatrick replied:

Island Educators Speak at UVic

Two Island exponents of unorthodox education methods will join a student-sponsored seminar at the University of Victoria Saturday.

They are Joan Schwartz, teacher at Victoria's new Orangethorpe School, and John Young, principal of Campbell River's senior high school.

"I think it is the responsibility of the chamber of commerce. To keep the grass fresh along Duncan's new boulevards, Ald. Kilpatrick suggested the installation of a sprinkler system."

Third member of the panel will be Marilyn Clayton, director of instructional research at Educational Services Inc. in Boston.

Chemainus Forger Goes to Jail

CHEMAINUS — Donald Gary Baillie, 21, Chemainus was sentenced to one year definite and one year indeterminate at Oakalla, when he appeared before Magistrate George Hallett, Thursday. Baillie pleaded guilty to two counts of forgery.

NANAIMO — The regional college organizers will get their story across to the public here by using a booth at the Vancouver Island Exhibition. Committee chairman Jack Whillam, head of the co-ordinating group here, said questions from the public will be answered by those in charge of the booth.

DUNCAN — Cowichan Rugby Club has opened its fall season with a meeting in the Wharmcliffe Road Park clubhouse. The meeting discussed arrangements for the annual visit of the Edmonton, Lugechamps. The visitors play the Cowichan team at Duncan Sept. 3.

DUNCAN — Arthur Thom, who moved to Chemainus 38 years ago, has died in hospital at Victoria. He will be buried in Chemainus Cemetery after funeral at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in St. Michael and All Angels Anglican Church. Mr. Thom, former fisherman and carpenter, was 53.

DUNCAN — Edith Emma Deakin, 84, died recently, and will be buried after funeral service 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, St. John's Anglican Church, Cobble Hill. She lived in Cobble Hill for 23 years.

TOFINO — A public meeting will be held tonight in the recreation hall to discuss an increase of three mills in taxes, proposed by the regional district and set aside for expansion of the West Coast hospital, Port Alberni.

PORT ALBERNI — The RCAF's Golden Centennaire aerobatic team will buzz the city Saturday afternoon in a spectacular display of flying. The team, which uses Tutor trainers, will fly as low as 30 feet above the water, an official of the group explained.

Best views of the centennial display, which includes a CF-101 Voodoo interceptor, a CF-104 super starfighter and two First World War Avro-504 biplanes, can be obtained from the waterfront. The 45-minute display will start at 2:30 p.m. Wing Cmd. O. B. Philp, of Sidney, commands the team, which is led in the air by Sqd. Ldr. C. B. Land, of Creston, B.C., a member of the famed Golden Hawks.

DUNCAN — Ald. B. W. W. Cocks has told council that social assistance disbursed from the city office during July amounted to $5,441. The assistance was paid to 28 families with 78 dependants, 24 single men, eight single women, one child placed with relatives and four boarding home cases.

LAKE COWICHAN — Tony Phillips, one of 10 B.C. delegates selected to attend the Young Canadians' Resources for Tomorrow conference at Harrington, Quebec, has left by train. The delegates are all

NORTH COWICHAN — Building permits issued by municipal hall rose to $549,831 in July this year from $320,735 during the same period last year. Seven-month total this year is $1,817,641 and in 1966 the figure was $1,754,213.

CROFTON — Personnel manager of B.C. Forest Products pulp mill here, Jack Gallagher, has left to take up his new post as personnel manager with Bulkley Pulp and Timber Co. Ltd., which plans to operate out of Vancouver.

UCLUELET — At a public auction of lots in the old Stapleby townsite, held in the Alberni courthouse, 14 Crown lots were sold to Ucluelet and district residents, and one to an Alberni resident. Several lots are still available.

PORT ALBERNI — A $420,000 permit for the new Safeway Store in Port Alberni pushed the building permits total here in July to $77,000. Permits in the same month last year came to half the figure.

Calgary Sets 'Em Up!

By JIM TANG

It'll be understandable if they cancel the bar bills at the Calgary Golf and Country Club.

If it isn't that, then it will be something else. Something, certainly, will be done to celebrate or commemorate the performance of three club members in the Canadian amateur golf championship at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club.

Stories and pictures on Page 12.

Playing in a field termed by Louis Du Plessis, manager of South Africa's Commonwealth team, as "the finest in the history of amateur golf," Keith Alexander, Bob Wylie and Doug Silverberg have managed what will be an unprecedented accomplishment for members of one club.

CANADA'S HOPE

Not only did the three members of Alberta's Willingdon Cup team all qualify and safely make it through the first round of match play, but when play starts in the quarter-finals this morning, there will be only Alexander and Wylie representing the host nation.

And Silverberg might have made it three Canadians among the eight survivors but for the fact that he was drawn against Wylie in the 1st yesterday afternoon.

Alexander, who eliminated Geoff Clare of New Zealand on Wednesday, ousted two more Commonwealth golfers yesterday.

TWO MORE

He measured another New Zealander, Bruce Stevens, in the morning round by 4 and 3. Then he bested South Africa's David Symons by the same margin in the afternoon.

Today, Alexander meets Ross Murray, the husky New Zealander who defeated him, 1 up, in the Commonwealth Matches.

Wylie, who started off with a 1 up victory over Edmonton's Bob Broadburn on Monday, yesterday took Tom Hunter of Vancouver.

Help to Negroes Denied by U.S.

OTTAWA (UPI) — A Canadian senator Thursday accused the United States Congress of "virtually halting action on all measures" designed to help the American Negro achieve equality.

Senator Hazen Argue described the U.S. governing body as a combination of right-wing Republicans and Southern Democrats who don't really understand the problem of the Negro and are indifferent to his needs.

'MORE TROUBLE'

Argue, who recently returned from a private fact-finding tour through U.S. racial hot-spots in Alabama, Georgia, and Mississippi, said he can see "nothing but more and more trouble ahead" in the United States.

The 46-year-old senator from Kayville, Sask., said he made the tour as a holiday trip and for a "first-hand look at the conditions of the American Negro."

"I was appalled by what I saw," Argue said.

ROTTING DWELLINGS

He said Negro housing in major cities — Atlanta, Montgomery and Jackson — "is a collection of ancient, rotting dwellings infested with rats and cockroaches."

"Families are jammed into

Royden Chrysler, 18, of Moose Jaw, said he was walking near a city park shortly after midnight Thursday when a white convertible stopped beside him and two men jumped out.

One held a gun, the other a pair of scissors.

They ordered him to stand still while they cut off his long, flowing hair.

The shorn youth said he had never seen his assailants before.

Argue said the U.S. Congress was guilty of playing anti-President Johnson politics over measures designed to help the Negro.

"It's so bad, the Congress refused to provide President Johnson's modest request for $20,000,000 for rat control in the big city slums," he said.

He said the Vietnam war "with its big claims on the U.S. budget is devouring monies that could otherwise go for urban redevelopment, for education and job training."

The Canadian senator said that under present circumstances the prospects "indicate more violence, more riots and more destruction in the days ahead."

Island's East Coast Woods Closed

'Scared We Might Lose Park'

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Tinder-dry forests on Vancouver Island have forced a general woods closure on the east coast with the almost unprecedented added precaution of a ban on all campfires in provincial parks.

A spokesman for the provincial parks branch said Thursday: "We are just scared to death that we might lose a park."

Officials said all-night patrols have been on duty in parks for several days watching for campfires which might cause a larger conflagration.

The campfire ban has been in effect outside of parks and other approved camp and picnic spots for some time, but the increasing hazard coupled with the fact that "99.9 per cent" of campers use gasoline stoves for cooking prompted the additional precaution, the spokesman said.

Parks branch officials said on only one other occasion

Giant Island Fire Rages On

BLASTING BLAMED

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

A B.C. Hydro official has blamed the Forest Service and the Highways Department for the start of a giant forest fire between Alberni and Tofino.

"Why did the Forest Service allow the Highways Department to undertake blasting on that road, when the forests were so dry?" asked A. D. McGillivray, regional manager of Hydro.

"They wouldn't let our crews in because it was too dry, but they let them blast on the road. It just doesn't make sense."

The fire now covers 10 square miles, and is being fought by 500 men, including loggers and residents.

"Three truckloads of fish are rotting on the dock at Tofino, because a power outage killed the ice supply."

Colleague Attacks De Gaulle Stand

PARIS (Reuters) — The leader of the right wing among President de Gaulle's supporters in Parliament attacked de Gaulle Thursday for his controversial support for French-speaking Canadians.

Valery Giscard d'Estaing, whose Independent Republican party provides 44 seats toward the Gaullists' thin majority in the National Assembly, also issued a strongly worded appeal to de Gaulle to reform his methods of government.

CONTRARY ACT

He said in a statement that de Gaulle's support in Quebec for the French-speaking Canadians was "contrary to one of the principles on which Gen. de Gaulle founded the recovery of France's prestige and influence — a refusal to interfere in the internal affairs of states."

He said the president would have done better by accepting the Canadian federal government's invitation to Ottawa, and then, on his return to France, expressing to French-speaking Canadians "the contribution which France can bring to the affirmation of their personality."

Giscard d'Estaing also urged de Gaulle to base his decisions on effective deliberation both inside the government and in Parliament.

He said there were not "two categories of Frenchmen—the good ones and the bad ones," and there should be democratic debate both in the Gaullist ranks and the Opposition.

Striking Seamen, Shipping Firms Break Off Talks

MONTREAL (CP)—Bargainers for Canada's inland sailors and 32 shipping companies broke off talks late Thursday after trying vainly to bring a quick end to a strike that started at noon.

Leonard McLaughlin, president of 5,400-member Seafarers' International Union, described the walkout as "a situation on fire" and said the union is determined to satisfy four basic demands—the main one being a 40-hour work week. (See Page 5)

Shipping along the Great Lakes and down the St. Lawrence River ground to a halt gradually as the hard-pressed negotiating teams began working on package offers they hoped might end the strike that could eventually stall 181 ships.

The post-strike discussions were ended about 6 p.m. when the two sides left a sweaty downtown office and declared they had reached a stalemate.

No time or date was set for a resumption of talks.

The companies operating the vessels handle about 82 per cent of Canada's inland cargo transportation.

By 5 p.m. at least 35 of the 181 ships involved had been tied up in the ports from the Lakehead to Quebec, as their crews walked off the vessels.

Shortly after the strike deadline passed complaints poured into union headquarters here from shipping operators that some ships were abandoned and some cargoes left unloaded.

"It's all malarkey," said John Royce, strike director for the seafarers, when asked about company charges.

Maritime trustee Judge Rene Lippe and Jean-Pierre Despres, assistant deputy minister of labor, spent much of Thursday morning clarifying issues with the negotiating teams.

"This is the first really serious bargaining session these people have had," Judge Lippe said during the lunch break.

But soft-spoken Ben Truax, chief negotiator for the shipping companies, said the two sides were still far apart.

Mr. McLaughlin said that negotiators Edward Simard and Joseph Simard from northern ports carrying vital supplies for department of national defence bases.

Asked to clarify what he meant by distress, Mr. Dunkerley said in one case a ship had been abandoned in a tidal basin at Quebec City. It should have gone in, unloaded and come out on the tide.

"But its crew has abandoned it and when the tide goes out she'll be lying on the bottom. Wouldn't you call that distress?"

Association President J. W. McGillin issued a statement at the press conference in which he claimed that the strike could

Storks Vs. Eagles

Sky Dark with Fighting Birds

By NUYAN YIGIT

ISTANBUL, Turkey (Reuters) — Eyewitnesses Thursday confirmed accounts of deadly battles between storks and eagles.

A Reuters report of a two-day fight near Tarsus this month, which left 50 dead birds on the ground aroused controversy among British ornithologists.

But two Turkish zoology professors and Istanbul's Hunters' Club confirm that the air war is very real.

Hussein Karagol, 62-year-old physics teacher of Erzurum, Eastern Turkey, described how the birds fight in battle formation.

"The eagles and storks fight in thousands," he said.

"I was in a valley of the Shakhak Mountains near Erzurum in 1921, when I saw such a battle."

"The storks' tactic was to gain altitude—not vertically but gradually winging higher. The eagles flying in a horizontal line attacked them as they rose. But those which were not wounded or killed flew above the eagles and selected their individual enemy targets.

"Extending their beaks, drawing back their feet and folding their wings, they dived exactly like an arrow. When a stork's beak strikes the head of an eagle, there is not the slightest chance of the eagle's surviving."

"Sometimes the stork cannot pull its beak out again and both fall and die together."

"During the battle the sky is dark with fighting birds. Blood covers the ground and the air rings with the cries of eagles and the blows of the storks' beaks."

Professors Saadet Bayramoglu and Atil Sengun of Istanbul University confirmed the battles of the birds which usually takes place when the storks are migrating for the winter.

Situation On Fire

They were a request for the 40-hour week, paid holidays, a new manning scale and changes in a work-spread system that keeps sailors on call over 24-hour periods.

The red-haired union leader said the 98 per cent pro-strike vote registered by his members earlier this week made it clear the men would not return to work without winning these demands.

"It's a situation on fire," he said. "We can't settle without winning these four points. What good would it do if the men wouldn't go back to work?"

Pearkes Asks: Did Corps Break Law?

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes has asked for legal opinion on whether the Canadian Corps of Commissioners in Victoria has broken provincial labor laws, he informed the Three Cees Association in a letter.

Replying to a Three Cees letter asking that he resign as patron of the corps because of alleged contravention of the act, he said, "I hope it will be possible to adjust the differences which still exist between the Three Cees and the Victoria Corps."

"I shall have to obtain legal information as to whether the actions of the corps are contrary to the Unfair Labor Practices Act."

DEADLINE PASSED

Tuesday's deadline for members of the corps to choose between it and the Three Cees passed with no one resigning from either, and so far no one being expelled.

Corps commandant C. M. A. C. Wurtele had said that Three Cees members would be expelled from the corps if they continued membership in the association.

Three Cees secretary Donald Sykes commented after the deadline had passed, "I believe the corps has realized that it has made a serious mistake."

SAW PETERSON

Mr. Sykes said the association had been to see Labor Minister Peterson and Mayor Hugh Stephen, and had protested to the premier and to the attorney-general's department, about the corps' ultimatum.

"This action may have helped to prevent layoffs," he said.

Mr. Sykes said the Three Cees group was anxious to have talks with the corps, but under certain conditions.

OPEN BOOKS

First, there would have to be a rehearing of all cases of layoffs on the part of the corps, he said.

Mr. Sykes also demanded that the corps lay open its financial books.

"We want to know what is happening to the members' money," he said.

MONEY COUNT

"Money has been taken in by the corps for the past 15 years or more."

"We want to know if anyone is receiving honorariums or unlimited expense accounts, and for how much."

"No one has need to hide if there is nothing to fear," he said.

He also asked that the corps submit to an impartial hearing into its activities.

"Our fight with the corps has dragged on for 18 months, and they have yet to answer the charges we have made."

Mr. Turgosa, a farmer of Saanich, appeared in court yesterday to answer a summons of having shot and killed a dog, valued at $50, the property of Mr. James Lowe. Evidence was taken on both sides and the defendant finally pleaded guilty, but alleged in extenuation that he had lost a large number of sheep and hogs recently through "depradations of dogs. The magistrate thereupon inflicted a fine of $5 with $5 costs added. The fine was paid.

But Panic Over

Water Commissioner Changes Headaches

Despite a lack of rain in the foreseeable future, the panic is over in the Victoria water situation, according to water commissioner Ronald Upward.

He has, however, exchanged one headache for another, as forest closure threatens to stop work on the Sooke tunnel.

"Today, at 9 a.m., I shall be on my hands and knees at the forest ranger's office, begging for a permit to continue work in the closed area."

WORK UNDERGROUND

"Since we are working 1,000 feet underground, I'm hopeful he'll let us go through the woods to work."

Mr. Upward said any delay now would make next spring's completion that much later.

"I hope the ranger will help us, knowing the trouble we have had with our water supply," he added.

SUPPLIES ADEQUATE

He said that in the Greater Victoria district, water supplies are now adequate for the decreasing demand.

The latest, three-day-a-week sprinkling regulations are working well, he said Thursday, and as long as customers continue to co-operate, he can see no problems with water distribution.

"We have enough water for domestic use and half the usual sprinkling use," he said. "Water consumption seems to be under 22,500,000 gallons under the latest restrictions, and we can handle that."

LONG SUMMER

"I think a lot of people only needed a nudge to give up watering altogether," he said.

"It's been a long summer for gardeners. I know I'm glad to be back and let things go. Established lawns will come back all right in the fall, anyway."

SYSTEM WORKS

He said the honor system in requesting householders to sprinkle on alternate days is working well.

Meanwhile, Saanich officials pointed out Thursday that the municipality is issuing permits for special sprinkling concessions.

The permits are available only to greenhouse owners, nurseries, wholesalers and retailers of plants, and homeowners who have newly-seeded lawns less than three weeks old.

APPLY AT OFFICE

They can be obtained at the municipal hall between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on weekdays. The spokesman said this means anyone who wants a sprinkling permit for the weekend should apply at the Saanich engineering office before 5 p.m. Friday.

The permits are valid for the remainder of the year, or until Greater Victoria Water Board lifts its restrictions.

The official weather forecast calls for slightly cooler temperatures, but there is no sign of rain.

For the weekend, sunny weather with temperatures in the high 60s is forecast.

Friendship Offered By California City

By JOHN MATTERS

Victorians Thursday were invited to follow the Monarch butterflies to Pacific Grove, Calif.

The invitation came from two envoys of Pacific Grove, here to tell the Victoria Chamber of Commerce about their beautiful seaside town that's renowned as the focus of the migration of millions of Monarchs.

During September and October, trees are covered in a stunning display of the insects, they said.

The Victoria chamber, exchanged with Miss Alice Gelachen and Wendell Stack an "alliance of friendship." They said they chose Victoria for this special relationship because it has similar natural beauties that remain unspoiled by blatant promotions.

The city of 10,000, which is 130 miles south of San Francisco, sent to the Victoria chamber a large scroll commemorating the exchange.

'Follow The Monarchs'

One of the ideas is that Pacific Grove will encourage its citizens to visit Victoria during the summer months and the Victoria chamber will encourage people to go to the California centre for their winter holidays.

Pacific Grove is on the Monterey Peninsula, only a few miles from places such as Carmel and Monterey. Monterey has been immortalized by Nobel prize-winning novelist John Steinbeck in such books as Cannery Row.

It is the second California centre which has a special relationship with Victoria. Earlier this year, the city and Palm Springs decided to become "sister cities" — an idea which almost has the same objectives as the chamber of commerce's alliance of friendship.

Pacific Grove is known as Butterfly Town because it is the home for the Monarchs, who migrate to the north during the summer and whose offspring return next fall to the same trees where their parents wintered.

Thursday's proclamation, signed by Mayor Earl Grafton, said the alliance of friendship should lead to more understanding and cultural exchanges.

French-English Clash Has Negro Link

By BILL STAVDAL

The Detroit riot has lessons for Canadians, says sociologist Dr. Rudolph Helling, who lived and researched in the Motor City's black ghetto before it erupted.

"The U.S. treatment of Negroes and the Canadian treatment of French-Canadians have a lot of similarity," Dr. Helling said this week at the University of Victoria.

Unless Canada's French and English elements come together with mutual respect, they are apt to drift into opposite extremes, said the 37-year-old head of the department of sociology and anthropology at the University of Windsor.

Dr. Helling is ending seven weeks of teaching at UVic. Last winter the German-born, U.S.-educated scholar was busy on a survey of employment in the slum areas of Detroit.

It was in the survey area, including Detroit's 12th Street, that the worst riots in U.S. history broke out late in July. From 1955 to 1958, Dr. Helling and his wife lived two blocks off 12th Street while he was studying for his doctorate at Wayne State University.

Last winter's study team which he headed was commissioned by the U.S. Department of Labor and the Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations at Wayne State University.

The researchers discovered a pattern of large families, poor education and sickness, and low pay among those who were working. Dr. Helling quoted figures after receiving a draft report of the survey's findings this week.

Among those looking for work and polled by survey team, 53 per cent had some kind of health problem or physical impairment that interfered with their chances of finding work.

Compared to Detroit's overall unemployment rate of 3.8 per cent, the researchers found that white males had an unemployment rate of 4.9 per cent, white females 5.2 per cent, Negro males 7.2 per cent, and Negro females 17.6 per cent.

Dr. Helling's survey team has been given additional funds since the Detroit riot to analyse its information more deeply.

"There are numerous implications for Canada," he observed here this week.

"We in Canada are not especially more sympathetic toward the aspirations of minority groups (than the U.S. is)."

"In Canada we have the pillow treatment for complaining minorities. It smothers you," said Dr. Helling, a naturalized Canadian.

The pillow treatment, according to Dr. Helling, involved expressing shock and surprise at grievances, the collecting of petitions and the expression of sympathy, while nothing is done.

"If you complain, they put you through the grievance machinery. If it's a large matter, the machinery may be a royal commission," he said.

This lack of response to grievances by the majority can eventually drive a minority to extremes, he warned.

"Many aspects of French-Canadian problems can be channelled into violence,"

Poor education has contributed to higher unemployment among French-Canadians, he said.

"We should not polarize our society. We should recognize the goals and aspirations of both French and English."

"My biggest fear is that there will be such a polarization in Canada."

"A sober restraint is the foundation of inter-group relations at the present time," he said.
